CITY ADOPTS ECONOMY PLAN

"The Vanguard" By Arnold Bennett

A THRILLING story of business, love and feminine wiles by one of the greatest authors in the English language. Follow "The Vanguard" on its daily cruises in The Star.

MR. SUTHERLAND rang the bell for service in his private sitting room at Hotel Splendide, and expected the prompt arrival of the waiter. Mr. Sutherland was a man of 50, clean-shaven, spare, rather austere, with respectable and slightly harnessed demeanor which comes of having married young and remained married, and the thin lips and logical jaw which usually develop on the faces of men who have been called to the bar. Brown-gray hair that might soon, but not yet, be described as scanty. Pale blue eyes, whose science denoted a certain mild self-complacency on the part of Mr. Sutherland. The reasons for the self-complacency were various and good.

In the first place, Mr. Sutherland was a seventh child, to be which is always a mystical asset in life; and further, his parents had indicated his ordinal position in their family by christening him not Septimus, which is banal, but Septimius, which is rare and distinguished. That extra "i" had virtue for Mr. Sutherland.

In the second place, Mr. Sutherland some 30 years earlier had stroked the Cambridge boat. Nobody, in giving an account of Mr. Sutherland to people who were unacquainted with him, ever omitted to mention this fact, and only cynical or malign persons would mention also that he had not stroked Cambridge to victory.

Sutherland, the Greatest Organizer; And Away from His Family!

The third reason for self-complacency was that Mr. Sutherland was, and knew himself to be, an organizer. He organized everything in his existence, and when, as now, he was enjoying for a space the absence of his delicious, disorganizing wife and girls, and of a devoted, incompetent valet, he would organize with abandonment and utterly revel in his talent for organizing.

The apartment gave evidences of organization. Mr. Sutherland was leaving Naples that evening by train. The receipted bill, much stamped, for his sojourn at the Splendide lay open on the center table. His suitcase lay open on a side table, with a couple of books all ready to slip into it. The suitcase was labeled with two labels, one adhesive, the other attached by string. In the bedroom lay Mr Sutherland's flat American trunk, still open, lest Mr. Sutherland might have forgotten something. It could be snapped to in a second. Hanging over the raised lid of the trunk (which had three labels) was Mr. Sutherland's rug conveniently folded, and on an adjacent chair were his hat, overcoat and gloves. The spectacle of all this organized order gave pleasure to Mr. Sutherland.

The bell was not answered. Mr. Sutherland's organization, however, was not discountered by the delay. He always allowed a margin for the imperfections of mankind and the malice of heaven; and now he utilized this margin by systematically opening every drawer in the sitting room, bedroom and bathroom, and demonstrating to himself for the second time that he had forgotten nothing. Thereupon he shut the American trunk.

Septimius Disturbed, Begins To Doubt Hotel's Efficiency

Still the bell was not answered. And now Mr. Sutherland began to have a new and dark idea about the organization of the Hotel Splendide, which organization he had hitherto admired without reserve. The Splendide was the best hotel in Naples. There were four other leading and in every way first-class hotels—the Majestic, the Belvidere, the Royal Palace, and the Grand Miramar, and according to advertisement each of these four was also the best hotel in the city. The Splendide, however, had two advantages over its rivals—due to

Little Money, Big Result

WITH a little money you can do much these days. For instance, with only $260,000,000 a group in Wall Street, with J. P. Morgan's company at the head, are planning a merger of corporations totaling two billions of dollars. One share in ten idles brains will control almost anything.

Even the Rockefeller family, according to official statement, has less than 4 per cent of the various Standard Oil companies.

The latest two-billion dollar combination has to do with power, gas and public service corporations.

* * *

The time has gone for crying your eyes out over big combinations.

If they promote efficiency and give the public a share of the savings, they are good for the public.

If not, console yourself with the thought that if the public is not intelligent enough to watch and control one big combination it surely wouldn't have the intelligence to watch a dozen little combinations.

This new contribution to science is expected to revolutionize man's conception of the universe.

Einstein devoted 10 years to writing the five pages, which present the universe as existing in four dimensions, instead of only three—length, breadth and thickness or depth. Second assures you that there is a fourth.

We can feel or imagine that fourth dimension. The great French mathematician Poincare, said that after 10 years of incessant study a man MIGHT have a faint conception of it. And of all men living, only one, a British mathematician, Hutton, is ac-

"SANDWICH" DOWN AS WEATHER MENU

Balmy Zephyrs Between Two Cold Waves Is Program Here

Marion's weather menu for the week-end will be a sandwich—a few balmy zephyrs between two cold waves.

Last night the mercury dropped to eight degrees above zero and continued there this morning. Along toward noon it started a gradual rise. Snow is predicted for tonight and Sunday. Tomorrow the mercury is scheduled to scoot down to near the zero mark.

Cold weather in Chicago claimed one death yesterday and was indirectly responsible for a train wreck near Cedar Rapids, Ia., in which five men were injured. Previous to the wreck it had taken the train 11 hours to run 50 miles due to the heavy snows. Bus service in Davenport and Iowa City was suspended.

Roy L. Mitchell, airmail pilot from Columbus to Cleveland, was forced to abandon his flight to Cleveland last night, landing 18 miles northwest of Newark, being forced down by a blinding blizzard. The pilot made a safe landing.

Yesterday in Marion the temperature rose to 34 degrees and then fell back to eight last night. Last year, on the same day, the mercury registered 42 for high and 39 for low.

W. G. SLACK IS APPOINTED TO FILL VACANCY

Former Member of Council Returned to City's Legislative Body

WILKINS ADVANCED

Made Pesident Pro Tem; Murphy Gives Farewell Message as Council Head

W. G. Slack, 448 Summit st., former councilman, was appointed to membership in city council last night by members of that body to fill the vacancy created by advancement of R. E. Prettyman to the office of president of council.

The changes in council were caused by the death of Mayor Earl M. Hazen. Emery M. Murphy, then president of council, automatically became mayor, and Prettyman, president pro tem, stepped into the position vacated by Murphy.

These changes left the office of president pro tem vacant and last night council unanimously named J. A. Wilkins to fill that position.

Eight Candidates

The election of Slack was made from a list of eight candidates for the position. Only one dissenting vote was cast, and that was for Kenneth Roberts.

Besides Slack and Roberts, the candidates were Al Schuster, J. V. Wilson, John Owens, A. H. Marks, Hayes Rodgers, Ross Wertz and Edward Stroble.

Mr. Slack formerly served two terms as councilman and during his time in office was on the finance and several other committees. Mayor Murphy stated after the election that he was pleased that council had seen fit to name a man experienced in city affairs. Mr. Slack is employed in the pricing department of the Marion Steam Shovel Co.

Murphy's Final Talk

In tendering his resignation as president of council at the start of the meeting Mayor Murphy said:

"It is with sincere regret that I come before you this evening for the purpose of tendering my resignation as president of council. This step is necessary due to the regrettable and untimely passing of our friend and co-worker in civic affairs, Mayor Earl T. Hazen. At this point it is proper and fitting, I am sure, to say that in the death of Mr. Hazen we have lost forever the inspiration and influence of a capable man, a noble, kindly and generous man, and may we in extending our condolences to the bereaved family endeavor to emulate his principles of justice to mankind.

"In assuming my new duties as mayor I shall look to you for support and may the spirit of cooperation so heartily accorded me in the past, continue on and in return I shall endeavor to conduct my administration in a manner reflecting the highest credit to the office and to city of Marion."

According to law a president of council is barred from holding a position on any committees. Council voted that Mr. Slack should replace Mr. Prettyman on all committees.

POSTPONE HEARING FOR BERT BUCKLEY

Illness of Defense Attorney Causes Date To Be Advanced

COLUMBUS, Jan. 12—Trial of Bert B. Buckley, state treasurer, indicted by the federal grand jury on prohibition conspiracy charges, today had been postponed until Jan. 28, because of the illness of the defense attorney.

Buckley was scheduled to have gone on trial Jan. 21.

The state treasurer was indicted with John Schrimper and Joseph Sperber, both of Cincinnati, for alleged conspiracy in connection with operations of a brewery at Cincinnati. Buckley is accused of having attempted to bribe a federal officer, to obtain protection for "unlawful brewing activities."

Schrimper and Sperber pleaded guilty when arraigned.

Possibility that more persons would be indicted in connection with the case, loomed today when it became known that U. S. District Attorney W. B. Bartels had recalled the grand jury for a one day session Monday.

FIRST COUNTY INSTITUTE SET FOR NEXT WEEK

Two-Day Program To Be Given at Claridon School Building

Plans for holding the Claridon Township Farmers' Institute Jan. 16 and 17, have been completed and a program arranged, according to an announcement made today by C. W. Fetter, president of the institute. This will be the first institute held in the county this year.

An elaborate premium list has been prepared and it is expected that a large number of entries will be made in the various departments.

The program will get under way at 10 a. m. Wednesday. The morning program will be featured by a one-act play by five high school students. Mrs. Lily H. Cooper, of Lattaz, will be the main speaker at the opening session.

In the afternoon Mrs. Cooper will again speak as will Earl B. Thomas, county auditor. Mr. Thomas will speak on the subject, "Taxation." In the evening Reed M. Winegardiner, of Marion, and Mrs. Cooper will be the speakers.

Judging of the exhibits will take place Thursday morning. Mrs. Cooper will again speak as will the Rev. Mr. McFarlin, of Claridon. In the afternoon J. B. McLaughlin, of the soil and crop department of Ohio State university, will be the principal speaker. Mrs. Cooper will also make another address.

The institute will close Thursday night with a play, "An Old Fashioned Mother," given by the Community Folks.

KING GEORGE'S CONDITION UNCHANGED, GETS SLEEP

LONDON, Jan. 12—King George had a fair night with several hours of sleep, but his condition continued unchanged today, Buckingham palace officials declared this morning.

Although the king has not made any noticeable progress during the last 48 hours, it is believed that his condition is as satisfactory as can be expected at this phase of his illness. More perceptible progress is anticipated next week.

YOUTH RELATES PART TAKEN IN WITCH MURDER

Wilbert Hess, 18, Faces Jury in Fight for Freedom

NOT AFRAID

Claims To Have Been Induced into Accompanying Blymyer

COURTHOUSE, YORK, Pa., Jan. 12—His pale face twisting nervously, Wilbert Hess, 18, took the witness stand here today and related the ghoulish details of his part in the brutal slaying of Nelson D. Rehmeyer, a 60-year-old farmer whom he believed to be a "witch."

Hess testified that when he was arrested he admitted he had hit Rehmeyer "once or twice." He was then shown a confession which he had signed and Attorney Gross quizzed him regarding it. Hess said Blymer told him and his parents that they "were all bewitched by Rehmeyer."

"Blymer came to our house," said Hess, "and read a few lines from the Bible. He said he would have to get a lock of Rehmeyer's hair. He said he would need someone to hold down the man; someone with nerve. I said I thought I could hold my nerve. My mother said it would be all right to go for the lock of hair to break the spell."

Wilbert was asked by this correspondent before court opened this morning how he felt. In a dead-tired voice, he replied:

"All right."

"Are you frightened over your predicament?"

"No, I am not afraid any more."

There was something almost fanatical in the way he said it.

Long before young Hess, shackled to a deputy sheriff, entered the court room, a large crowd had assembled in the York county court house to see the curtain rung down on the "witch" murder drama. It was the same throng of queer, backward, superstitious folk that have been coming to the court house all week, many of them drawn by sympathy for the defendants.

DEATH ENDS LONG CAREER IN BUSINESS

Pneumonia Fatal to Proprietor of Wiant Book Store

IN BUSINESS 43 YEARS

Funeral Services of Veteran Merchant To Be Held Monday

Charles G. Wiant, merchant who had been identified with Marion business affairs for the last 43 years, died at his home, 324 East Center st., early this morning. Death came at 3:30 o'clock after a two weeks' illness of influenza, which developed into bronchial pneumonia.

Mr. Wiant was the owner of the C. G. Wiant Book Store, which he founded at its present site on West Center st., in 1885. The store has been operated without change of name longer than any other in the city, with the exception of Kleinmaier Brothers.

Funeral Monday

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at the home at 2 o'clock. The Rev. L. A. Wood, pastor of Trinity Baptist church, will be in charge, assisted by Dr. R. L. George, pastor of Epworth M. E. church. Interment will be in Marion cemetery.

Mr. Wiant was born in Bellefontaine, on Oct. 10, 1853, the son of Andrew Jackson Wiant and Mary Elizabeth Taylor Wiant, both pioneer residents of this section of the state. There were five children in the Wiant family, only one of whom is now living.

When the family moved here from Prospect in 1884, Mr. Wiant decided to enter business and the following year established the store that now bears his name.

His father, the Rev. A. J. Wiant, together with his wife, founded the

SECOND REPRIEVE IS GRANTED BY JUDGES

LeBoeuf and Dreher Win Latest Battle To Escape Death

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 12—Mrs. Ada Bonner Leibeuf and Dr. T. E. Dreher—the south's "Gray-Snyder" lovers—will not hang today.

The condemned pair, convicted of conspiracy in the murder of the woman's husband, James L. Leibeuf, had won the latest battle in their fight against the gallows. The supreme court late yesterday granted a 15-day stay of execution to give their counsel sufficient time for a hearing on Chief Justice Charles A. O'Neill's order last week which granted the couple an indefinite delay.

The high court then requested Gov. Huey P. Long to grant an official reprieve of from three weeks to a month for the hearing. This the chief executive agreed to do. His official action was expected some time today.

The supreme court handed down two opinions. The majority decree held that Chief Justice O'Neill was without authority last week when he ordered a stay of execution, and held his order null and void. The opinion also upheld the action of four associate justices last week in ordering the hangings to proceed.

Then followed the 15-day intervention for a hearing of the chief justice's order, which, in addition to having granted an indefinite stay of execu-

COUNCIL CUTS APPROPRIATION FOR THIS YEAR

Ordinance for 1929 Provides for Reduction of Expenditures

TOTAL IS $341,120

Falls $11,867 Below Ainount in 1928; Clerks' Pay Increases

Economy will be the keynote of the city administration during the coming year, according to the annual appropriation ordinance passed last night at a called meeting of city council. The ordinance was passed unanimously.

The appropriations had been prepared earlier in the week by the finance committee from funds to be received from taxation this year.

The ordinance for 1928 called for an expenditure of $353,088 while this year it has been cut to $341,120.19, a decrease of $11,867.81.

This decrease in operating expenses was made despite the fact that the water and lighting rentals have increased, the garbage department must expand to meet the demands of an ever increasing population $1,140 and a new appropriation, rental of the city building goes of $1,000 was made to oil city streets this summer.

Clerks Get Small Raise

Aside from these demands which were facing the finance committee, it saw fit to cut a few odd dollars here and there to give four women clerks in various offices a slight increase in salary.

Members of the finance committee state that the budget has been absolutely pared to the bone this year in an effort to eliminate all unnecessary expenditure.

Summary of Appropriations

A recapitulation of the ordinance giving salaries, departmental expense and the increase or decrease over 1928 follows:

The administrative offices this year will operate on $39,760.04, as compared with $42,008 in 1928, a decrease of $1,181.20. This appropriation is divided as follows:

City council members will receive the same pay, a total of $1,500, and will receive $100 for operation as compared with $200 last year, a $100 decrease.

Clerk of council will receive $1,500 or the same as last year. He is given $125 office expense this year and received $675 in 1928, a decrease of $250.

Mayor's office: salary $2,400; expenses $50, a decrease of $50.

Auditor's office; salary $1,900; office expense and clerk hire, $1,950, an increase of $120. The salary of the clerk in this office has been raised $180.

Treasurer's office: salary, $750; office expense $25, a decrease of $25.

Solicitor's office; salary $2,100; operating expense and salary of assistant solicitor $2,180, a decrease of $100.

Election Cost Higher

Election expenses this year will be $6,950 as compared with $6,600 for last year, an increase of $350. This increase is necessitated by the increased number of wards and precincts.

Last year $1,000 was appropriated to take care of legal advertising while this year only $800 has been set aside, a saving of $200.

The city's share of the municipal court has been cut from $2,400 in 1928 to $2,250. The judge's salary is

THREE MORE HELD IN ROBBERY PROBE

Total of Six Youths Arrested as Alleged Participants in Burglaries

With the arrest of three more Marion youths, Chief of Police J. W. Thompson continues his war to break up a series of store robberies which have occurred in the city during the last two months.

The three arrested today are: Roy Brosee, 18, Davids st., Paul Lehmer, 18, 855 Congress st., and Thomas Plezza, 931 Kenton av. These three were arrested in connection with the robbery of Smith's pool room at Oakland Heights the night of Jan. 3.

All three have signed confessions stating their part in the robbery, police state. The youths will be arraigned this afternoon or Monday before Judge William Martin in municipal court and will probably be bound over to the grand jury.

This makes six arrests this week in connection with robberies throughout the city. Sunday, police arrested Steve Sessera, Hobart Hostetter and Frank Guluzzi in connection with the robbery of the Cuselus & Fearn store last month. Sessera and Hostetter are awaiting action of the grand jury and Guluzzi has already been sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory.

Chief Thompson stated yesterday that he expected to make two or three more arrests within the next few days.

130 Autos Stolen, 129 Recovered, in City Last Year, Police Report Shows

ONE of the best records in the state was compiled by Police Chief J. W. Thompson and his force during last year in recovering stolen automobiles.

During the 12 months just past a total of 130 automobiles of all sizes, shapes and descriptions were stolen from the streets of Marion. Out of that number 129 were recovered through the local police department and the officers are now working on a clew that may bring back the one car to make a perfect record for the year.

1,682 Arrests Listed

Chief Thompson reports that a total of 1,682 arrests were made by the department during the year. The arrests were made for everything from robbery down to loitering.

Aside from the regular criminal arrests, 1,247 traffic ordinance violators were brought into court and a total of 3,913 persons were kept at the city prison for safekeeping at nights.

A total of 1,048 meals were served at the prison to persons arrested and held for arraignment in municipal court.

During the year the police department made 50 searches, answered 1,627 complaints and 1,537 calls were made for police assistance during the year.

Merchandise recovered during the 12 months amounted to a total of $66,373.12.

Animals and Birds of Many Varieties in "Family" of 500 at Local Pet Shop

Woman Is Head of Interesting Business Operated on Patten st.

ANIMALS and birds, coming from territories extending from the tropical regions to the frozen Arctic, are lodged in the same house in Marion. Domestic fowls of the farm are the close companions of dainty parqueets otherwise known as love-birds. Sounds unusual, but it is a fact, nevertheless.

This novel and interesting collection is in charge of Mrs. W. R. Stevens Patten st., who owns and operates the Rabbit House and Pet Shop. She has had a building erected near her home, and in little compartments are housed pets ranging from monkeys to Persian kittens.

Her husband was formerly in the rabbit business, but when so many people called for different animals and birds he established a pet farm at the rear of his home reduced the number of rabbits from 1,500 to about 150, and collected all the animals he could find, and turned the business over to Mrs. Stevens.

Well Stocked

At the present time, there are about 500 head of stock in the house, including monkeys, white rats, guinea pigs, ferrets, pigeons, fox terriers, bull dogs, Eskimo puppies, parrots, love birds, canaries, and in the rear room, rabbits, large and small, chickens, and—wonder of wonders—a cow.

Mrs. Stevens explained with a smile that the cow is kept for the benefit of the pets, because many of them are young, and require milk.

However, the source of food is not difficult. With the assistance of several local bakeries, Mrs. Stevens keeps the pets healthy on bread and milk, and of course feeds the birds seeds and the rats and chickens cracked corn.

Eskimo Dogs Popular

Of all the animals in the shop, the little Eskimo dogs seem to sell better than any of the others. They are not bred at the stock farm, but are secured through larger dealers. This is unusual, as Mrs. Stevens raises almost all of her stock, except the parrots, monkeys, and several varieties of dogs. The parrots are also good sellers, but are very hard to get, especially in the winter, as they are shipped from Mexico.

Eskimo Dogs Have Largest Sale; Love-Birds an Unusual Feature

At present, Mrs. Stevens has only one monkey, but he makes enough fuss to supply adequate excitement. He was formerly a circus monkey, acting in the ring for about a year. He is extremely independent and will not make up with women or children. He bows when his mistress tells him to, and will sit on her shoulder when called.

Love-Birds Well Named

Mrs. Stevens states that after a two-month observance of the stock, she has come to the conclusion that the paraqueets, or love-birds, have the most peculiar habits. It is necessary to keep the birds in pairs, or they will die, Mrs. Stevens says.

At times they sit each in a corner of the cage, and quarrel back and forth, then one will give in, and they become companionable again, rubbing their bills together and stroking each other with their wings. They are like miniature parrots, only have a much more loving disposition, and whistle instead of talk.

The little white rats are very useful, and are in great demand for medical purposes, Mrs. Stevens says. They have large pink eyes and are easily trained.

Mrs. Stevens also stated that there were strange calls for various animals. In one instance, she says that a man came in search of a guinea pig as a pet for his son. An effort is made to keep such a supply as will fill all local orders, but due to advertising in "pet magazines," orders come from different places, and at times it is necessary to send away for the desired animal or bird.

"It is a very delightful occupation as well as a paying one," Mrs. Stevens states.

Senior Leaders Club Prominent in Association Program

The Senior Leaders' club, an organization composed of 11 young men and sponsored by the Y. M. C. A., is taking an active part in Y work, according to F. O. Rudolph, physical director.

The club holds two meetings a week, the Monday night session lasting from 7 to 7:45 o'clock, being devoted to Bible study and a thorough study of the human body and its work. Dr. A. Ithu and Earl Hale, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., are in charge of this period.

On Thursday night at the same time, the club devotes its time to practical work on the gym floor. Each member becomes proficient at the parallel bars and all the gym equipment before he is in the club a very long time.

Dallas Johnson is president of the club, Charles Osterbolt, vice president and Carl Cudd, secretary-treasurer. Other members are Robert Bush, Alvie Redmond, Walter Lockwood, Robert Tuttle, Curtis Meeker, Reuben Frye, John Sloan, and George Glonser.

BEGINS PRACTICE

Y Volleyball Team Preparing for Sectional Tourney

The Y. M. C. A. volleyball team has changed its practice night to Thursday night to accommodate some members of the team.

The team has begun practice for the sectional tournament to be played at Van Wert on Feb. 23. The Marion team has won this tournament the last four years. The winner of the Van Wert play goes to the state tournament, scheduled for later in the spring.

The Marion team won the state tournament in 1926 and went to the national tournament at Philadelphia, where it made a good showing. The team finished second in 1927 and third at Columbus last year.

MRS. HARRY MOUNTS IS CLUB HOSTESS

PROSPECT, Jan. 12—Mrs. Harry Mounts entertained the T. E. club at her home Thursday night. A two course dinner was served to 10 members at 6 o'clock. The remainder of the evening was spent socially. Mrs. Ralph McPherson was a guest. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. H. O. Osborn.

IS SOCIETY HOSTESS

KIRKPATRICK, Jan. 12—Mrs. William Scott was hostess to the Ladies' Aid of the M. E. church at an all-day meeting Wednesday. The day was spent in quilting. Devotions were led by Mrs. L. S. Green. A cafeteria dinner was served at noon. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. F. C. Knowles.

BUILDING PROGRAM GETS SLOW START

Only Two Permits for Construction Projects Issued This Year

Only two building permits have been issued at the office of the city clerk so far this year. One of these permits came this week when the Seventh Day Adventists announced plans for construction of a new church. The structure will cost $5,500.

This time last year 30 permits had been issued calling for a total expenditure of more than $400,000. The permits last year included the one for the Palace theater.

CALLED TO CONNEAUT

KIRKPATRICK—Mr. and Mrs. Allen Lust and family were called to Conneaut Tuesday by the death of Mrs. Lust's mother.

MAY SING IN CLUB

Marion Co-ed's Name Placed on List of Singers

COLUMBUS, Jan. 12—The name of Miss Dorothy Buckley, of Marion, has been placed on the tentative list of members of the Girls' Glee club at Ohio State university which will enter the Women's Intercollegiate singing contest at Cincinnati, in March.

The tentative list of co-eds who are expected to enter the contest, contains 35 names. The list may be cut to 25 before the contest, officials state.

Selection of the 35 co-eds was based on attendance at rehearsals, ability to sing and interest displayed in the club.

Miss Buckley is a senior in the College of Education. She was named a member of the club following preliminary tryouts last fall.

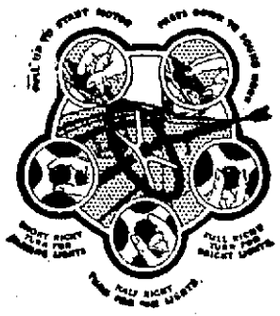
THE NEW SUPERIOR Whippet
WORLD'S GREATEST SEDAN VALUES!
With the new "Finger-Tip Control"
The greatest advance in driving convenience since the self-starter. A single button in the center of the steering wheel, controls all functions of starting the motor, sounding the horn and operating the lights.


WITH all its many improvements, with its greater beauty, longer wheelbase, larger body, new "Finger-Tip Control" and higher compression engine, the Superior Whippet Four Sedan is still the world's lowest-priced four-door enclosed car.
And the new Superior Whippet Six Sedan is the world's lowest-priced six-cylinder four-door enclosed car to offer the important advantages of seven-bearing crankshaft, "Finger-Tip Control," silent timing chain, full force-feed lubrication and Nelson type aluminum alloy invar-strut pistons.
Never have Fours and light Sixes been distinguished by such beauty and style as are now winning nation-wide praise for the new Superior Whippet. Its grace of line, its harmony of color, its longer bodies, its high radiator and hood, its sweeping one-piece full crown fenders, make the new Superior Whippet the style triumph of master designers.
The larger bodies give more spacious interiors, with broader seats and extra leg room. Other important factors in riding comfort are the oversize balloon tires, snubbers and longer springs both front and rear.
In performance, the new Superior Whippet is speedier, livelier and more powerful. Long service will prove its dependability and economical operation.
See and carefully examine the new Superior Whippets. An immediate order will aid in early delivery.

BOOTH EXPECTED TO BATTLE RESOLUTION

Committee Will Report Visit to Head of Salvation Army

SUNBURY-ON-THAMES, ENG., Jan. 12—The Salvation Army high council resumed its deliberations here at 10:30 a. m. today after starting the proceedings with the usual prayers and hymns.

The main purpose of today's meeting was to receive the report of the deputation of seven delegates who visited General Bramwell Booth at his home in Southwold yesterday and informed the commander-in-chief of the council's resolution asking for his retirement.

Among the delegates it was generally felt that the general would fight to the bitter end. "If is believed he will refuse to retire and even attempt to take the matter into courts if the council deposes him over his refusal.

Some of the delegates, however, were of the opinion that the general would propose some sort of compromise.

Great Man, Says Will

Commissioner Arresting Half of Population, Police Force; Scientists Start Argument on Holyland; What's Going To Happen More Important

By WILL ROGERS

They should throw History into the river.

WELL, all I know is just what I read in the papers, or what happens here in the old Human Hash Bowl. We got a new Police Chief here and he has arrested most of the population and over half the Police force. I look for him to issue an order arresting himself some day. He has got the Cops so scared that they are arresting traffic instead of directing it. He may get away with it. He is quite a fellow.

He has had great training for such a strenuous life. He used to be the head of the Mayors Reception Committee. It was his work to go down the Bay or out on the incoming Boulevards and meet the Visitors to the City and try and get them to go to City Hall and have their Pictures taken with the Mayor. You couldent tell whether he was working for the City or for some Photographer. There was for awhile that you couldent get a passport into the City unless you had had it "Vesayed" on the steps of the City Hall.

Given Decorations

He has been decorated by almost every foreign Government, for getting their subjects through the traffic from the pier to their Hotel. It used to take him till noon every day just to meet the Foreign Lecturers. People used to try and disguise and keep the Reception committee from knowing they were coming into New York. But it dident do any good. They had a Detective force to find out when any Channell Swimmer, Golf Player, foot racer or Diplomat was trying to sneak through the City without getting their Picture taken and they would nail em.

Grover, (His name is Grover Whalen) worked on a commission basis. He got so much for meeting an Aviator, so much for Swimmers. The Bounty on Queens was the highest. If you could coax a Queen to detour by City Hall why he could lay off and call it a day and not meet anybody else. And he made such a big success out of this that the Great Wanamaker stores heard about it and they offered him a job at a great big salary if he would just bring these people by their store. It wasent far from Photographic Hall, so it got so the best place to see those Notables was as they went through Wanamakers. Course none of them dident buy anything, they never figured on that. But the people that come in to see em used to see the wonderful bargains there while they was waiting and that made it a very profitable undertaking for the store.

Going After Crooks

But say he is just going after these Crooks in this town like he did after those Notables. He is not letting a one get away, cause he is that kind of a fellow. There is no half way with him. It would be a good joke on this town if he did clean it up. Course that would ruin it, for its getting like Paris, its supposed Devilment is its biggest add. The rest of the country drop in here and think if they don't stay up till four a. m., that New Yorkers will think they are "Yokels," when as a matter of fact New Yorkers have been in bed so long they don't know what the other half is doing.

New York lives off the out of towner trying to make New York think he's quite a fellow. So it looks like this fellow is going to get somewhere. There won't be any "in between." He is either going to be good, or a bust. There will be no half way record with him. So here is good luck to you Grover, you took on a man's job, and if you get away with it you will be the fellow that will be rounding up the notables to bring and have their pictures taken on the steps with.

Scientists Meet

We had all the Scientists met here in convention lately. (I don't mean the Christian Scientists. These from the way they talked were Atheist Scientists.) They read great long papers to each other, discussing what they had found out. One of them got in wrong with the Toastmaster of the whole concern by announcing that "We needed some other religion, that we should look to the earth for our guidance instead of to the sky." The "Head Man" in the Scientist business told him, "Keep your mind on your work, never mind worrying about something you dont know anything about. We dont want to get mixed up with these Religious people in any argument. They are the ones we are living off of, so find something wrong with somebody besides our meal ticket."

A Scientist is a man that can find out anything, and nobody in the world has any way proving whether he ever found it out or not, and the more things he can think of that nobody can find out about, why the bigger Scientist he is. One of them here at this re-union read a Treatise, that the whole story of Christ and the Bible dident happen in the Holy land, that the whole thing was away in the middle of Asia, somewhere around where China and India meet now. Now what if he is right? Whats that got to do with General Motors stock? The minute that California hears that there is a doubt among Scientists as to just where the whole action of the Bible took place, I bet you they will dig up a "Scientist from some Rotarony Club" and he will read a paper to prove the whole thing took place just between Glendale and Long Beach, California.

Never Mind History

Then the argument will start as to whether the River Jordan is the Sacramento or the Tallassee. You know thats one reason why I think Henry Ford is the smartest man in the World today. He said never mind History, he dident care what had happened, he wanted to figure what was going to happen. I think if every History or books on old things was thrown in the river, and everybody had nothing to study but the future, we would be about two hundred years ahead of what we are.

What do we care about whether Caesar got along with Mark Anthony or not? What we want to know is "Are we going to get along with England or not, and if not, get ourself some Cruisers." George Washington wouldent tell his father a lie, but he misled the British about the strength of his Army till he led 'em into a war and killed most of em. What does that mean to us? What do we care whether he crossed the Delaware in a "Skift" or dived under it? There is bridges on it now, that's how we got across it. Nothing ever happens exactly the same twice anyhow.

Events are like finger prints, they say there is no two alike. History dident teach us that; somebody was smart enough to find it out. So whats the use studying one event, when you know it will never happen that way again? If all that History teaches us is that Napoleon moved his Army on "its belly," what does that prove? Only that soldiers were all belly and no head in those days. We got to fight the next war with an Airship, so what does it matter whether Lafayette was on a Grey Horse or a Ford Car? If Henry Ford had studied the past instead of the future, about all he would ever have invented would have been, "The cheapest suit of Armour on the market. It will take you through the most wars with the least expense. Remember Fords suit starting Armour."

COLUMBUS' DRUNKEN BANDITS ARE ACTIVE

Filling Station Attendant Latest Victim; Routed at Pharmacy

COLUMBUS, Jan. 12 — County and city police today were conducting a determined search for "Columbus' two inebriated bandits" who have been making sport of authorities for the past three nights.

Wednesday night, the duo kidnaped the crew of a street car, took them "for a ride" and robbed them of $38.

Thursday night, the intoxicants kidnaped the crew of another street car, took them for a short tour of the city and robbed them of about $100 in cash. They also robbed a filling station.

Last night their activities consisted of the holdup of a filling station and a drug store.

Each night the bandits used a stolen automobile.

Thursday the men opened fire on an auto that they believed was following them. No one was hurt.

H. D. Bishop, filling station attendant was the victim last night. The robbers, after taking $38 from him, forced him into their stolen auto and drove him home. They declared they were going to take him for a little ride, but when Bishop pleaded that the night was cold and he had no coat, the two chauffered him home. Before they started, the thugs kicked out both the rear window and windshield of their car, "so they could shoot both ways in case they were molested."

After evicting Bishop, the men are believed to have held up the Hocprett Pharmacy. The clerk there refused to "stick 'em up" at the command of pointed revolvers, so the bandits turned on their heels and walked out.

Every night, the bandits were reported to be "very drunk."

SLAYER GOES TO DEATH AT PRISON

Bradshaw Pays Penalty for Murder of Woman: Makes Statement

COLUMBUS, Jan. 12—Another man today had taken the walk through "the little green door" at the Ohio state penitentiary here and paid the supreme penalty demanded by law and society for his crime.

He was John Bradshaw, 42-year-old negro. He was electrocuted last night at the big state prison for murdering Katie Young, 20, negro, Feb. 25, 1928.

Marched into the death chamber at 7:32 o'clock, he was strapped to the chair, the black mask adjusted, the current applied at 7:41 and was officially pronounced dead at 7:48.

Just as the guards were strapping the black mask over his head, the negro interrupted them and asked for a last word before he died. This was granted, and in a firm, yet strained voice, he said, "I bitterly regret the disgrace I have brought on the negro race." He also thanked the warden for his kindness to him during his stay in the penal institution.

The negro gained statewide notice Wednesday when specifying his last wishes. He demanded that his insurance money be used to provide for a 25-piece brass band at his funeral. He also said it was his last wishes that he buried in a cedar casket and that a big marble tombstone be placed at the head of his grave.

Another Arrives at Pen Death Row

COLUMBUS, Jan. 12—Death row at Ohio penitentiary had four inmates Friday. It also has the same population today, despite the removal of one man, John Bradshaw, via the electric chair, last night.

Shortly after Bradshaw had been removed to the condemned cell back of the death room, Rodney Ford, Cincinnati murderer, arrived and was placed in death row. Ford is under sentence of death April 16.

Those now in death row besides Ford are John Sabo, Akron; Everett Koons, Marion; and Joseph Weaver, Cleveland negro.

DIRECTOR RESIGNS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—Stephen T. Mather of Chicago resigned today as director of national parks. He has been in ill health. H. M. Albright of California, acting director, was named to Mather's place.

Ministers Of County To Attend Ohio Pastors' Meeting

ANNUAL CONVENTON SET FOR JAN. 21-24

Marion County To Be Represented by at Least 20 Pastors

OTHER MEETINGS LISTED

Laymen and Church Women To Convene; Prominent Speakers on Program

At least 20 ministers of Marion county will attend the tenth annual Ohio Pastors' convention to be held in Columbus Jan. 21-24 under auspices of the Ohio Council of Churches, and in conjunction with the Ohio Conference of Church Women and the Ohio Laymen's convention on the same date, according to the Rev. W. H. Howard, pastor of First United Brethren church, local representative on the state program committee for the pastors' convention.

Among the pastors who have plan to attend are: the Rev. V. P. Powell and the Rev. C. D. Copley, of Green Camp; the Rev. J. A. Carriker, pastor of Forest Lawn Presbyterian church; the Rev. W. H. Howard, First United Brethren church; the Rev. George E. Groves, Central Christian church; the Rev. J. M. Fisher, director of Lee Street Presbyterian church; Dr. B. L. George, pastor of Epworth M. E. church; the Rev. I. Kauffman, Greenwood Evangelical church; the Rev. G. A. Kanzler, Salem Evangelical church; the Rev. E. Williamson, Oakland Evangelical church; the Rev. Howard L. Olewiler, First Presbyterian church; the Rev. Karl W. Patow, Prospect Street M. E. church; the Rev. G. A. Whitlock, Wesley M. E. church, and the Rev. L. A. Wood, Trinity Baptist church.

Church Leaders on Program

According to the Rev. Mr. Howard, the ministers attending will gain inspiration from some of the country's outstanding religious leaders and will have the opportunity of studying questions of vital importance under the leadership of these men.

Ten discussion groups will be held and the Rev. Stephen E. Keeler, of Akron, convention chairman, has asked that several pastors from each county be represented in these groups.

Topics of study will include religion, education, the town and country church, international good will, industrial good will, the youth community, moral welfare in the home and the state county conference.

Arthur C. Bachelian, John H. Clark, John J. Stafford and C. Z. Zachmann expect to attend the Ohio Laymen's convention at Columbus, Jan. 22-24, at which vital problems of importance to churches of all denominations will be taken up and methods of solving them through inter-church cooperation, discussed.

Dr. Cadman To Speak

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, national radio preacher of New York, Bishop Theodore S. Henderson, of Cincinnati, Dean Luther A. Weigle, of Yale Divinity school, Dr. Alva W. Taylor, sociologist of Nashville, Tenn., Walter P. Fraser, president of the Christian Laymen's association, Pittsburgh, Bishop Francis J. McConnell, new president of the Federal Council of Churches, New York, and many other men prominent in church work will be present at the convention.

Registration is open to laymen in any church.

The new Griswold Memorial Y. W. C. A., South Fourth st., Columbus, will be convention headquarters for the second annual Ohio Conference of Church Women, held under the auspices of the Woman's Committee of the Ohio Council of Churches, Jan. 22-24 at Columbus, to be attended by a delegation of women from Marion churches.

PLAN PAGEANT

25 to Take Part in Presentation at Christian Church.

About 25 members of Central Christian church will take part in a missionary pageant to be presented Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock at the church by the missionary society.

The name of the pageant is "Around the World with His Disciples," and depicts missionary work being done in the various fields of the world. Scenes will be laid in the countries represented.

How To Get Rest

A SERMONETTE
BY THE REV. W. H. HOWARD
Pastor, First United Brethren Church

"Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." Math. 11 and 28.

THE moral needs of men and the method of help are always the same. Israel sinned, prayed, was forgiven but suffered still. Forgiveness does not always remove the evil consequences of sin. Repentance and forgiveness remove a large share of equal consequences.

The Israelites, looking upon the brazen serpent, accepted the invitation of the text.

Now the question naturally comes to us—"Who are to come?" Sinners. Why sinners? Because the service of sin is the most grevious labor and an evil conscience is the heaviest burden.

Suicide and all self-destructive deaths come from a guilty conscience.

Psalms: "For mine iniquities are gone over my head as an heavy burden that are too heavy for me. Now by the help of God we shall do valiantly, for He it is shall tread down our enemies."

1 John 5 and 3: "For this is the love of God that we keep His commandments and His commandments are not grevious." Jesus says: "It is expedient for you that I go away; for if I go not away the comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart I will send Him to you."

How are we to come? We are to come voluntarily. Men may influence you and assist you but you must come yourself and lay your burdens before Christ and then like the children of Israel it needs only a look.

I am glad that the invitation is to all and none be rejected. It is an invitation where none are slighted. We invite you again to come to the feast where none are cast away and where all may obtain rest. Jesus is inviting you to come.

WEEK OF PRAYER TO OPEN MONDAY

Program of Services Announced for Calvary Evangelical Church

Calvary Evangelical church will open its week of prayer Monday night, according to an announcement made today by the Rev. E. Radebaugh, pastor. Each church is choosing its own date for services this year instead of holding union services as was done last year.

With the opening of services at Calvary, the Rev. John A. Carriker, pastor of Forest Lawn Presbyterian church, closed a week of prayer in his church, Friday night, with a talk on "Modern American Homes." The closing observance of the week of prayer at Forest Lawn church will be the winter communion services at 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning.

Church News . . . Told in Brief

Will Attend Service—All members of the Marion County Woman's Christian Temperance Union have been requested by the president, Mrs. Mary Jennings, to meet at 6:30 o'clock Sunday night in the basement of Epworth M. E. church to attend the Victory Day service in a body.

Meeting Monday Night—Circle-of-Light, King's Daughters, Epworth M. E. church, will hold a regular meeting Monday night at the home of Mrs. R. F. Williams, East Church st.

Special Service—The Lord's Supper will be observed at morning services Sunday, at First Presbyterian church, the Rev. Howard L. Olewiler announced today.

Installation on Program—Installation of officers chosen at a recent meeting of the Central Christian church will be held at 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning. The Rev. George E. Groves, pastor, has chosen as the subject of his sermon to follow the installation, "Church Leadership."

Society to Meet—The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Prospect Street M. E. church will be held Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock in the church parlors. Miss Elizabeth Ruth, Miss Mae Tropf and Mrs. Lena McCoy will be hostesses.

Victory Day Program at Epworth Church to Mark Ninth Anniversary of Prohibition

County W. C. T. U. Arranges Special Service for Sunday Night

Word has been received here from Florence D. Richard, president of the Ohio Women's Christian Temperance Union that because of illness she will not be able to appear as speaker in the Victory Day program to be given under the auspices of the Marion County Woman's Christian Temperance Union, Sunday night at 7 o'clock in Epworth M. E. church, celebrating the ninth anniversary of the national prohibition. The anniversary date is Jan. 16.

Program Arranged

The meeting Sunday night will open with the singing of "America," followed by a scripture lesson, Psalm 98, by Dr. B. L. George. Miss Martha McGee will present two piano numbers, "Venetian Love Song" and "Good Night," by Nevin. Mrs. Vera Koons and daughter, Ruth Eloise Koons, will give a duet, "Onward Christian Soldiers."

John H. Clark, local attorney, will give one of the addresses of the services, using as his subject, "Lest We Forget." The second address, coming later in the program, will be given by Dr. B. L. George, who has chosen for his topic, "Nine Years After Prohibition."

Led by Mrs. A. L. Wood, W. C. T. U. musical director, the "Crusade Glory Song," will be sung by the Marion County Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Miss Nyla Miller, president of the Marion City Young People's Branch of the W. C. T. U., will give a reading, "Hold Fast." Miss Ula McNamara will give a prohibition reading, "Hold Fast, America."

Miss Maye Evangeline Lawrence, organist, will present "Finale to Third Symphony," Mendelssohn, as the prelude and the organ postlude. The choir, under the direction of Guy E. McLean, will sing "Now the Day Is Over."

County W. C. T. U. History

Marion county has played a prominent part in W. C. T. U. work throughout the state and at one time had the largest single organization in the state, when Frances Willard chapter registered more members than the county registration shows today. Florence Richard chapter was organized later as the second unit in the Marion city work, the attendance in Frances Willard chapter became so large that it was necessary to divide the membership into three groups, Frances Willard, Anna Gordon and Lillian Stevens, all city W. C. T. U. chapters.

Mrs. Mary Jennings West Center st., county president, has been a member of the organization many years, and in 1907 was president of Frances Willard chapter.

The present membership in the county is about 500, almost 1,000 less than the membership when prohibition was first being discussed and agitation among the women was so strong. The work of the women in prohibition is still an important problem, according to Mrs. Jennings.

"Give Prohibition Its Chance," Is Plea of Marion County Temperance Leader

Mrs. Mary Jennings, of this city, county president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, in a specially prepared article calling attention to the ninth anniversary of the 18th amendment, discusses advances made in this country since prohibition became a national law in 1919.

The W. C. T. U. slogan, "Give Prohibition Its Chance, the Liquor Traffic Had Its Day," has been designated as the subject of Mrs. Jenning's article, which appears below:

"Nine years is a short time to give prohibition a chance. The liquor traffic had been deeply entrenched in our nation for nearly 100 years, but nine years after national constitutional prohibition became effective, what do we find in America?

Sums Up Benefits

"We find a land overflowing with happiness and prosperity; we find a land where there are better and happier homes; we find a land where women and children are fed and better clothed; we find a land where boys and girls are better educated; we find a land where more men find employment; we find a land where nine of every ten families own an automobile; we find a land where there are more savings accounts in our banks; we find a land where there are more recreation and travel; we find a land where there has been a great decline in mortality from about 15 to 20 per thousand population, which means an annual saving of nearly one-half million human lives; we find a land where the death rate from alcoholism has dropped over one-third; we find a land where people are living longer and possessing better health because of prohibition.

Should Be Consistent

"Let us give prohibition a chance by being law-abiding citizens. Let us give prohibition a chance by expecting all who talk dry and all who vote dry to also live dry, by obedience to the Eighteenth Amendment.

"The object of prohibition is to protect the American home from the drink traffic and the drink habit. The drink traffic is an outlay. Let us treat it as we would treat any other outlaw. It takes two to make a bootlegger and the one who buys liquor is equally as guilty of breaking the law as the one who sells liquor. A good citizen of this republic will obey all laws.

"Law observance is a moral obligation for each individual. The Eighteenth Amendment prohibiting the manufacture, sale, transportation and exportation of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes is a part of the Constitution of the United States, the fundamental law of the land.

"Prohibition is the best method yet tried for the control of the liquor traffic. 'Give Prohibition Its Chance—The Liquor Traffic Had Its Day.'"

REVIVAL SPEAKER

The Rev. Randall P. Fitch of Cincinnati, above, will open a series of revival services in the Community church on Herman st., Sunday morning.

The Rev. Mr. Fitch is now filling the pulpit left vacant by the death of the Rev. Mr. George last August.

Special music has been planned for the series of services. Two services will be held Sunday, at 10 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. During the week the services will open at 7:30 o'clock each night.

PLAN ORGANIZATION OF LOCAL SOCIETY

First Steps Taken To Form Branch of Catholic Charity Council

Fred S. Tuke, of Cincinnati president of the Cincinnati Metropolitan council of St. Vincent de Paul society, has been invited by the men of St. Mary's Catholic parish and the Rev. William J. Spickerman, pastor, to visit here soon and aid in the organization of a council in this city.

The invitation was issued following a meeting of the men of the parish and the Rev. Father Spickerman, Thursday night of this week at the home of L. A. Axe, Summit st.

St. Vincent de Paul society is a men's charity organization taking care of the poor families of the city and making visits to the homes. The society is an international organization with councils in all large cities.

TALKS SCHEDULED

First of Series To Be Given Sunday at Salem Evangelical Church

Sunday marks the beginning of a new idea in Sunday School work at Salem Evangelical church, one which has not been tried here before, according to the Rev. G. A. Kanzler, pastor of the church. The plan is to have a series of talks given by representative citizens of Marion.

At 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning W. E. Bartholomew, general manager of the Susquehanna Silk Mills will address the Sons of Salem, men's Bible class of the church. The address will be of 30 or 45 minute length.

ECONOMY PROGRAM ADOPTED BY COUNCIL

Ordinance for 1929 Provides for Reduction of Expenditures

$2 000 and the extra is appropriated for the services of a substitute judge This year this amount has been cut $150

Clerk of municipal court's office, salary $1 800 office expense and clerk hire $6 700 a decrease of $1 300 Despite this decrease a slight increase in salary is given the two clerks in the office

Last year $1 000 was appropriated for jury and witness fees while this year only $250 is set aside for that purpose a saving of $750 However this year $250 is appropriated to pay the city's share of court costs

Expenses and salaries of the civil service commission remain the same, $410 no increase or decrease This year a total of $5 413 04 is set aside for miscellaneous purpose while last year a total of $7 413 was appropriated, a decrease of $1,729 10

Safety Fund Lowered

The appropriation for the safety fund this year totals $105 250 as compared to $111 270 last year a decrease of $6,020, and will be divided as follows

Administration salary of director, $1 200 office expense and clerk hire $490, an increase of $130 The clerk of the poor relief was granted $180 raise in salary

Fire and police telegraph last year was allowed $4 200 while this year only $500 was appropriated, a decrease of $3 700 The expenditure of $3 000 for traffic lights last year boosted the total during 1928

Police department salaries $33 460 supplies expenses and operating $6 800 a decrease of $3 050

Fire department salaries $53 025 operation supplies and other expenses $6 375 a decrease of $5 250

This year a total of $2 450 has been appropriated for building inspection This department was created last February and was paid at the same rate in 1928 by transfer from the general fund

Supplies for poor relief was cut from $4 000 of last year to $3 400 this year a decrease of $600 The salary of the humane officer will remain at $650

Health Fund Increased

The appropriation for the health department was increased $1 075 this becoming necessary because of the increase in operation of the department

General administraiton salary of health commissioner, $2 400 operation clerk hire and expense $3 110 an increase of $285 Included in this increase is a raise in salary for Miss Mary Ellen Kerr, clerk to the commissioner.

Last year the sanitary police were given $2 081 and this year it is cut to $1 800, a decrease of $281

The money appropriated for quarantine work is also decreased by $381

Inspection department salaries $2 100, operation $50, an increase of $50

Slight Cut in Service Fund

Street repairing appropriation was also decreased $1 000 Last year this department received $5 000 while this year the appropriation is $4,000 In addition to this decrease $1 000 will be used for oiling streets something not done last summer

The sidewalk appropriation was reduced from $2,000 to $700 and the street cleaning department from $250 to $200

Despite the fact that many new lights have been installed the street lighting appropriation is only $252 higher than last year This act was accomplished by the elimination of $400 heretofore spent on traffic lights.

Garbage Account

Garbage department Payroll and labor $20,000 other expenses $6,230 an increase of $375 However, last year a total of $4,200 was appropriated for use at the old plant and nothing this year.

An increase of $1,950 was made in the appropriation for sewers and drains this year Last year this department was given $20,350 and this year $22 300

Despite the increase in rent for offices in the city building the appropriation for public buildings and lands was decreased $1,445. Water rental will be increased $1 000

No increase is given the city hospital in face of the face that $1,000 must be paid for rent for the nurses' home The appropriation remains at $31 000. The park fund will be increased this year $200

The finance committee estimates that the city will receive around $25 000 from the automobile license tax and about $32,000 from the gasoline tax, which will be used for street maintenance and repair At the close of last year approximately $13 000 remained in this fund and will be added to the amount received this year According to law this money can be used only for street work

tion also ordered the trial jurist, Judge Simon at Franklin to appoint a lunacy commission to examine the mentality of the slayers

This was the second time within a week that the slayers had been saved from the gallows Last Saturday an hour before they were to hang Governor Long granted a week's reprieve until the court tangle could be unraveled This after he had given one reprieve a few hours earlier and then cancelled it

First action of the supreme court in the matter came a week ago last night when it was petitioned by the defense counsel to force Judge Simon to appoint the lunacy commission This followed the jurist's refusal to take such action and a hearing over which he himself presided At the conclusion of this Mrs LeBoeuf and Dr Dreher had been pronounced "sane

News of the latest reprieve was telephoned to Franklin and relayed to the couple immediately

THE great Krupp gun factory thought it was ruined when the allies wouldn't let it make any more cannons It shows now profits of $10 000 000 a year That and a drop in the Reichsbank rate seem to confirm Mr Gilbert's statement as to German prosperity and ability to pay. "American bankers," a rather loose term, are supposed to have decided not to buy the German bonds, thus supplying cash for the allies. The sum would run to billions, and there is no demand for so many German bonds here.

BOY TELLS OF PART PLAYED IN MURDER

Wilbert Hess, 18, Faces Jury in Fight for Freedom

fantastic ideas, this tall, gangling youth who was raised in an atmosphere of witchcraft and mediaeval traditions will reveal to the jury the twisted mental psychology that made him a willing tool in the slaying of Rehmeyer

Spook Believer

His dour, matronly looking mother, Mrs Alice Hess, is a spook believer She told this writer so Somebody has 'put a spell on her' That's why would she be having all this trouble'

The youth's father, Milton J Hess a thin, pale man with coal black hair, sallow complexion and weak eyes—he wears thick blue-lensed glasses—is very superstitious, too The Hesses always have been They were only too willing to believe the story of John Blymyer, convicted powwow doctor, that they were "hexed' by Rehmeyer That is, that the old farmer-recluse who lived up the turnpike had 'cast an evil spell on them"

It is not hard to see why Mrs Hess readily acquiesced to Blymyer's suggestion that she allow her son to accompany him and the boy, John Curry to the Rehmeyer farm house to clip a lock from the old farmer's hair so that they could break the spell by burying the hair eight feet under the ground Mrs Hess thought that was the right thing to do

Two Sentenced

And Wilbert tutored in witchcraft since babyhood and perhaps powwowed through the various illnesses of childhood quite willingly answered, 'All right ma" So he went with Blymyer and Curry both of whom were this week sentenced to life imprisonment for their part in the brutal bludgeoning to death of Rehmeyer

Of course Wilbert did not go with the intention of killing the 'witch' he was only going to "hold him down' while Blymyer slashed a lock from the old man's hair But their plans went awry Rehmeyer, a muscular man despite his age fought back and in a sort of religious fanaticism they beat their victim to the floor while he pleaded for his life.

Practically All Stocks Show Increase for Week, Specialties Are Blocked

Brokers Report Increase of Inactive Accounts as Small Traders Wait on Market To Gain Balance; Studebaker Heads List of Motors

BY W S COUSINS
U. P. Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Jan 12—With few exceptions stock prices moved upward this week, carrying to a higher range the industrial stocks which closed the year 1928 in a blaze of glory Profit-taking and speculative selling blocked the progress of most of the high priced specialties, but the rank and file of the motor car copper, steel railroad and equipment stocks were marked up by the confident bulls in a market averaging about 4 000 000 shares a day

As was expected, the money market showed a distinct improvement, due to the return flow of the January interest and dividend funds to the banks. There was also a small decline in the amount of brokers loans outstanding as disclosed by the reserve board's report which indicated that the big fellows have again been buying stocks with their own money, rather than carrying on margin trading

Small Traders Out

The brokerage houses said that the number of inactive accounts on their books have increased considerably Many small traders have remained out of the market for the time being, in order to find out which way the cat will jump before committing themselves with their usual holdings of stock In many cases they are waiting for a break in prices before buying their favorite stocks But in the meantime they have seen prices steadily climb and their stocks slip farther and farther away

The motor stocks were the star performers of the week—or perhaps it would be more correct to say the motor stock, Studebaker having practically monopolized the spotlight in a new move which carried the price up about 12 points to the highest level in 10 years.

Start More Slow

Compared with December's flashing market, the price movements in the big 'Jazz babies' were unusually small Some of the headlines have so withdrawn from public gaze that they are now traveling in as narrow a circle as 10 or 15 points a day Once in a while they strike up their 20 to 30 point straddle, but that is an event rather than an incident of the day Radio and Victor have apparently lost their punch as speed kings in a fast moving market and thus far there have been none to take their place

All of the steel stocks were strong The United States Steel Corp reported for December an increase of 503 000 tons in unfilled orders, a remarkably favorable position for the giant of the industry and the steel mills of the country as a whole were reported operating at 87 per cent of capacity against 70 per cent at the same time last year Steel common gained about seven points for the week with it anew rise to above 185 and a higher price was quoted for the principal independent steels, including Crucible, Steel Foundries, Bethelhem Vanadium and Youngstown

Specialties Active

Among the specialties, Gold Dust Columbia Graphophone, Postum and Johns Manville continued to move forward Anaconda and International Nickel led the metals, Public Service of New Jersey and Consolidated Gas the utilities and Standard of New York the oils Prospects of better business in the tire and rubber industry stimulated good buying of U S Rubber common which forged ahead to above 50 in an active market

The New York City public utility stocks finished the week in strong form Partly in response to the activity of the Morgan bankers to form a new gigantic merger of light and power companies with outstanding securities valued at close to two billion dollars

Daily Proverb—"The devil will play at small games rather than at none at all."

A University of Chicago professor has found a way to change roosters to hens, but the fowls thus reconditioned refuse to lay. Does education pay?

The rations of the soviet garrisons in Leningrad and Moscow have been ordered reduced. Russia, it may be said, offers proof that even crimes in the name of government do not pay.

A citizen of Washington who had been operating a car there for fourteen years without a license was arrested this week and fined $50. He now realizes that accidents will happen.

It's going to be some job to convince the American public that Countess Rina de Liguoro is a moving picture star. When she posed for a picture upon her arrival in New York she didn't come within six inches of displaying her knees.

The British department of labor reports that there were 1,520,000 jobless in Great Britain, December 28. But then, what can Britain expect so long as she offers in a dole a premium for idleness?

The lower house of congress has amended the army appropriation bill to bar the use of war-time motors in new airplanes, which is good judgment from the standpoints of humanity and economy alike.

Countess Pierre de Jumilhac, the former Boston heiress, Constance Coolidge, seeking a divorce from her titled French husband, need not expect any sympathy from us. We're committed to the policy of investing our money at home.

The Fox Theater corporation is to erect a fifty-two story structure at the corner of Broadway and Forty-Seventh street in New York City to house a big motion-picture theater. Thus the elevation of film art goes on.

The Milwaukee Journal suggests that the fact that there are 9,000 unemployed actors in New York should lead to a movement for stage relief. No chance for that. There are too few stage people in the country to make much of an impression on the politicians.

The Chicago Civic Opera company will abandon the Auditorium theater to move into its new home, January 28, closing the theater as it opened it thirty-nine years ago with Romeo and Juliet at which time Adelina Patti sang the part of Juliet. How our impressions change. Less than two score years ago we Americans were inclined to look upon the Auditorium theater as the eighth wonder of the world.

A Voyage of Discovery.

The government wanted to know. There were a number of questions to which it sought answers, and hence Major Carl Spatz, of the United States army, and his four companions went up in the Question Mark, a Fokker airplane, equipped with three Wright Whirlwind motors, in search of them, taking off from Los Angeles.

How long will an airplane motor function continuously? Which will stand the longer strain, pilots or engines? What will be the comparative effect on plane and motor? What is the practicability of refueling in the air? What will be the effect of long exposure in the upper air and the roar of the motors on the crew?

The quintet found that men and machine stood the test better than the engines, one of which went dead and forced the Question Mark down after a continuous flight of 150 hours, forty minutes and fifteen seconds, the longest sustained flight of record. They found that not only fuel and food, but also parts of machines could readily be transferred from one plane to another. They found that the exposure was less rigorous than anticipated, but that the noise of the motors, continued day after day, was trying to say the least.

And now the engines are being gone over to determine to what extent they deteriorated and why the one engine went wrong, the hope being that the examination will show the way to the construction of motors practically indestructible, engines upon which dependence may be placed for periods far beyond that covered by the Los Angeles test.

The exploit of the Question Mark was not a stunt. It was a well-executed attempt to answer problems essential to the development of heavier-than-air machines. It was, we may say, a voyage of discovery, but a voyage into the realm of mechanical and scientific discovery. Whether or no as much may be said of the proposal to make a non-stop flight about the earth in the same way, is another question.

Mellon Slated To Hold.

While Mr. Hoover has not made announcement that he has invited Mr. Mellon to become a member of his cabinet, which naturally means that nothing has come from the distinguished Pittsburgh financier on the subject, those in position to speak advisedly say that the latter has been asked to retain his place at the head of the treasury department.

Such has been the record of Andrew W. Mellon as secretary of the treasury that his retention for the handling of the financial affairs of the country is bound to prove a most popular one. It is true that he has been bitterly assailed by a number of elements. The ultra drys have opposed him on the ground of wetness. He has been opposed by the so-called "progressive" group in congress, the group which may more fittingly be referred to as the "obstructionists," made up largely of renegades from the Republican party. The real, though unadmitted, objection of this element is that his record has been so fine that assaults on his administration of the treasury department can not be made to hold and thus cause embarrassment to the real Republicans of the country. Lastly, he has been made the target for attacks by Democratic politicians. The fault they find with him is not lack of ability, but the possession of too much ability. They realize that with Mr. Mellon holding the treasury portfolio, they will never be able to make political capital out of the handling of the government's finances.

From all sides come tributes to Mr. Mellon's ability as a financier. Almost daily one sees in type references to him as the greatest secretary of the treasury since Alexander Hamilton. Such references are the result of the reverence which we are inclined to give to notable figures of the past, and very often, as in the present case, they work injustice to the notable figures of the living present. We would not do injustice to the memory of the youthful Hamilton, but to our way of thinking he is not to be compared as a secretary of the treasury with the grey-haired secretary of the present. The magnitude of one week's governmental financial transactions of the present is greater than those of a year in the time of Hamilton, and the problems which come to the head of the treasury department in a month at present are in magnitude, in diversity, in complexity, far beyond the total of those of Hamilton's career.

We have long been of the opinion that one of the most notable achievements of President Harding was the securing of Mr. Mellon to serve as secretary of the treasury. Too often cabinet selections are matters of political expediency. Too often party fealty is made the test. The selection of Mr. Mellon by Mr. Harding was one made that the best interests of all the country might be served; brought about by the conviction of the late president that Mr. Mellon was the ablest financier and the one above all others in the country best equipped to handle the government's finances. It was a tribute to real worth. And this brings us to something else.

There have been presidents under whom two secretaries of the treasury have served, presidents under whom three have served; presidents under whom four have served and one president under whom five secretaries of the treasury served. Again, there have been secretaries of the treasury who have served under two presidents. But should Mr. Mellon serve under Mr. Hoover, as has been indicated, he will be the first secretary to serve under three presidents, which will be a tribute to high merit without parallel in the history of our government, the nearest approach to it being the record of Joseph Habersham, who served under Washington, Adams and Jefferson in the much less important position of postmaster-general.

A special commission out at Riverside, California, reports that Young Northcott, indicted as a result of the "murder farm" slayings, is sane, but feigns insanity. The insanity game is being so badly overworked that one of these day an insanity plea is liable to prove ineffective in the case of some man who really is insane.

Joseph Unger, caught red-handed with $2,000,000 worth of drugs in his possession, asked for justice and was given a sentence of eleven years and six months in Atlanta prison, which strikes us as one of the best cures for the drug evil reported up to date.

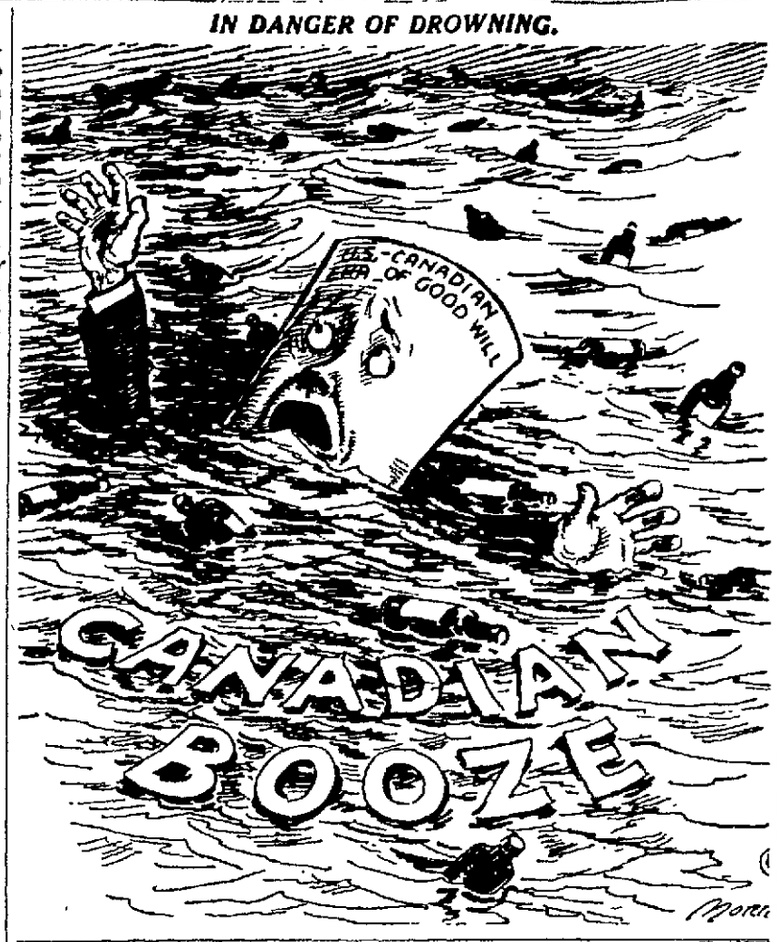
A Paris cable announces that the music halls there are no longer exploiting nakedness on the stage, as Paris has lost its taste for nude chorus girls, but that nudity will be restored at the beginning of the tourist season, that American visitors may not be disappointed. The unfortunate phase of this slam at American tourists is that it is not wholly undeserved.

The federal department of commerce reports that 16,667 miles of airways, 14,155 miles being air lines, were in operation December 1, the miles scheduled daily in all services on that date being 39,060. What a wonderful development aviation has undergone in this country since that non-stop air trip from New York to Paris.

Two traveling bags containing $18,000 worth of jewelry were stolen from a car while its owners were dining in the Cleveland restaurant before which it was parked. There's no danger of any hard-working spreader of joy and sunshine in paragraphs suffering a loss like that. The craft is never given to ostentation of any kind, especially in the matter of personal adornment.

A Detroit woman is under arrest, charged with having engaged four thugs to kill her husband, that she might secure the $100,000 life insurance he carried and his real estate business. It may be said that when Mr. Kipling made his famous statement he wasn't talking through his hat.

IN DANGER OF DROWNING.



Diseases Prevented by Tests.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Much is being said these days about the importance of periodical health examinations. Many writers and speakers on the subject advocate having everybody take such an examination, suggesting the birthday as an appropriate date.

There can be no doubt of the value of the great importance, indeed, of such physical tests. Before Lindbergh takes a flight, no matter how short it is to be, he goes over his airplane with great care. He makes sure that every part is in perfect condition.

When a train stops after a long run you will see the engineer out with a hammer to test the wheels and other portions of the locomotive. The station mechanics make similar tests of the trucks and wheels of the passenger cars.

It is a common practice to run the automobile into a garage now and again to have it looked over. Simple tests are made to determine its condition.

All these things are done with machines. Why not with men? Why will the owner or operator of an instrument of mechanical locomotion take such pains and yet never think of the machinery of his own body?

It stands to reason that with all the stress and strain of human existence there must be breakdown here and there. It would be remarkable, indeed, if there were not.

It is too bad not to check up on occasions. The birthday is a good time for this. All of us have birthdays. The day is likely to be one of meditation and perhaps of wonder. Why not wonder about the body that has carried you all these years? What is its state?

In one respect disease is pretty decent. It rarely makes an attack upon a human being without giving some sort of warning. That warning may not be readily interpreted. It may require an expert to recognize it.

That is why they are recommending this thorough test at least once a year. The expert physician who makes the examination will be able to recognize whether this or that condition he discovers, is one that should have attention.

Early cure of almost any one of the serious ailments will permit its removal, or, at least, lighten the attack, so it won't amount to much. It is a wise man who bears this in mind.

Make a friend of your doctor. Place on his broad shoulders the responsibility for your welfare. Make him understand that you trust him and are looking to him to keep you well.

Those wise old Chinese discovered this ages ago. They hire doctors, not to get them well, but to keep them well. They are too smart to wait till they are sick.

You should be smart, too. You will be if you go and do as the Chinese do. Have the doctor paid to keep you out of a sick bed.

There is great value in the regular health test. If the body and all its organs, including the eyes, teeth and ears, are kept in good condition, it will mean much to you. It will give you a longer time on earth and will make you happier and more useful while you are here.

Editorial Opinion.

A TIP FROM AMERICA'S TELEPHONE.

Every one knows what an ocean of difference there is between telephone service in America and telephone service in Europe. Here promptness and convenience prevail, despite all faults. There, except in one or two countries, vexation and delay are the rule. Whereas Bostonians usually can reach subscribers in New York or Chicago within a very few minutes, a man in Paris who wishes to call London must either arrange for use of a line "by appointment," often placing his order several hours in advance, or else must have his request go down on the "waiting list," sometimes being informed that he is "No. 41" in the queue of subscribers calling London.

The contrast is so great that it keeps thoughtful Americans always a little curious to try to determine what the cause is. The query, "Why should the service in Europe be so much less efficient than it is in America?" has become a stock question. Usually it is met by the stock answer—"Government ownership." We believe this explanation to be true and adequate in a very real sense. Government-owned telephone lines can never have the efficiency and energetic progressiveness of a telephone service owned and operated by a well-managed private company.

But still it can scarcely be argued that government owned telephone services must of an irretrievable necessity be so infernally bad as they have been in Europe. Even governmental institutions will make some change for the better if public opinion demands it. And so, one faces the deeper question, "Why has not such a public demand for better service made itself felt in Europe?"

It is on this underlying issue that valuable new light has just been cast by William H. O'Brien, the able director of telephone and telegraph utilities in the Massachusetts state department of public utilities. From extensive first-hand study of telephone service in nearly all the major countries of Europe, carried out on several trips abroad during the past three years, Mr O'Brien finds that one of the causes of the difference lies in a fundamental difference of attitude toward the telephone in its relation to business. Here, he explains, we accept it as axiomatic that "business follows the telephone." We are convinced, from experience, that if telephone service is well developed, business will by that fact be helped and developed. "In America," he says, "the telephone has, as a rule, been a few steps ahead of business and social necessities all the time, and has easily become the most vital artery of our whole industrial structure and indispensable to the home and our social activities."

In Europe, on the other hand, the point of view has been directly opposite. No new telephone exchanges and improvements were ever installed there in anticipation of business. They were not installed until long after it had been proved, by facts and figures, that more than enough business had accumulated to demand an extension.

Quite recently, however, some of the more open-minded European telephone officials, Mr. O'Brien finds, have begun to be affected by the American idea. With special encouragement from the American members, the International Chamber of Commerce has met important success in its effort to secure improvement of international toll service in Europe. All countries have agreed to do everything within their power to make such toll service more prompt and convenient. And officials report themselves as surprised by the quick results which have followed from adoption of the American plan. For example, the number of toll-calls between Paris and Berlin increased by more than 300 per cent, within three months after the installation of a larger supply of trunk lines between these two capitals. These "signs of life" are encouraging.—Boston Transcript.

WHY THE WAILS FROM WALES?

Much of the truth about the plight of the South Wales coal miners lies at the bottom of an oil well, or rather thousands of them. Rockefeller, Dutch Shell and otherwise. The British navy is installing oil engines on warships. Thousands of steamers, tramp or otherwise, are slowly changing from black to liquid coal. Railroads are using auto trucks, or lorries as they are called on the other side, for long and short hauls. Hundreds of thousands of automobiles are taking millions of people here, there and everywhere—people who used to travel vis-a-vis, and knee against knee behind the "iron horse." Electrified tubes or subways have eliminated the old underground steam railroads.

Worse still, Belgium and France, which formerly filled up their industrial coalbins largely with English soft coal, are now getting their supplies from Germany, for the Ruhr is one colossal coal yard, and the Teuton can undersell the Briton.

Furthermore, for years there have been 200,000 too many men to man the British mines, and the number is increasing. Beyond all these facts lies the $4,000,000,000 penalty Britain is paying for the general strike in 1926 in the loss of overseas trade that probably can never be retrieved.—Boston Transcript.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Jan. 12—It is estimated an average of 3,000 persons meet every large incoming transatlantic liner in New York. There is about it all the expectant air of the race track. Several hours before a boat arrives West street is in a turmoil. West street is the borderline of high adventure.

Automobiles and taxicabs are parked for blocks and cordons of police keep the traffic lanes clear. The pier sheds are fenced off with privileged space for those with custom passes. Regulations are rigid. Huge "No Smoking" signs are on every hand.

The arriving ship towed by the gallant little tugs, like so many tumble bugs, come slowly and majestically up the North river—resembling the Flatiron building suddenly loosed to drift up Broadway. There is much screeching, tooting and the whir of winches. Sometimes a band.

The upper decks are alive with eager faces pressed to the rails and fluttering hands. Ship officers are megaphoning precise orders in relays. Save in a severe storm, no moment is so perilous as when docking. The slightest mistake in the narrow space spells disaster.

At the portholes in the steerage are eager-eyed alien faces getting their first glimpse of the strange land they have heard so much about. Crowds at the pier rails scream their greetings which no one hears and which are returned in the same fashion. A bedlam and faintings are frequent.

After the ship is warped to the dock with giant ropes the gang plank is projected out to the ship—the journey is ended. And there is a rush for initialed space on the pier to await baggage. Ship news reporters who have met the boat at Quarantine are first to hurry off to their typewriters.

There is a cosmopolitan flavor about the unloading of a ship—an opera singer bedecked with orchids, the actress with some new breed of dog, the tweedy and monocled voyageur who seems bored by the excitement, the long haired virtuoso who hugs his violin tightly, the rich with "yessing" valets and prim maids. And such

Custom inspectors are polite, but firm. They often have an uncanny sense in their rummagings. For some the inspection is casual—a mere formal peek into one piece, a custom stamping of all and passengers are on their way. But for others, there is the fine-tooth combed raking of every article and now and then some harrassed and white faced arrival is led to private quarters for a more careful search. On almost every ship is some diplomat or dignitary who receives "freedom of the port" and goes through customs like a shot. There are abuses of custom by returning passengers, of course, but mostly slight. Uncle Sam is not so much concerned with the small fry. He is after bigger game—the international and professional smuggling boys.

Ben Riley, the restaurateur, too, keeps a close eye on patrons. Each night he sets down the name and date of prominent people who have dined there. As a result his place is always well filled. Flattery is a big asset in a restaurant. Ben, as it might be guessed, is Irish.

The Great Tool Maker.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

The great and only toolmaker is man. He began more than a million years ago. In order to know human history now one must become familiar with a whole lot of new names describing races which lived ages before there were any nations or empires or any scribes to record their history. But they made tools, and in their tools they have told their own story.

Mildred Fairchild and Dr. Hornell Hart, of Bryn Mawr college, have put their heads together to collect, in the Scientific Monthly, the principal facts now known about this million years of toolmaking. It is a tale that runs on a slightly upsloping level for a million years and then suddenly leaps straight up into the clouds of wonder. It turns miraculous. What was it, one asks oneself, that inspired this plodding race of two-legged mammals some five or six thousand years ago to start out to become almost as gods in their mechanics?

Some may think twice of the fact that this occurred about the traditional date of the creation of Adam. Was the writer of Genesis confusing a fast-developed inspiration with an instantaneous creation?

Who were the inhabitants of "the land of God?" See Genesis, chapter IV. What is the origin and meaning of the old legends about "the pre-Adamites?" Consider Pereira's theory that there were men before Adam, but because they were worthless, God created Adam with a spiritual nature.

Certainly some explanation is needed of the fact that from 1,500,000 B. C. until 15,000 B. C., the slope of human efficiency in tool-making was but just perceptible, but that it then rose swiftly to culminate soon in a skyward flight. Did the greatest genius the world has ever known suddenly appear, and give his race an immortal impulse, only to sink nameless himself into oblivion?

The Cromerians, the Chelleans, the Acheleans, the Aurignacians, the Solutreans, the Magdalenans, shaped their flint tools ever a little finer during 10,000 slow centuries. Then the Mesolithics and the Neolithics began to see a light; then the copper age and the bronze age came and the development of the application of power in tool driving, then lo! the leap was taken, and human mechanical skill and knowledge shot up like the equatorial sun. It has not ceased with taking man bodily into the sky and under the sea, and with making him master of energies that transmit his voice and his vision round the world. Every sensitive mind thrills in the belief that these marvels are but beginning.

Perhaps we are blinded by the light we live in. Because of that we do not see that our progress since this century opened is as much a miracle as was the upward leap that occurred with the birth of recorded history. What needs explanation, then, is the long slow stages of accumulation of potential knowledge and ability, together with the explosive suddenness with which the kinetic energy is developed.

Mankind has gained power because its inspiration is accelerative. A body falling under gravity starts slowly, almost reluctantly. But its velocity gains in every successive second. In the first second it will fall sixteen feet, but in the fiftieth second 1,616 feet. This is a constant acceleration, however, which human progress has not shown. On the contrary, the human acceleration, very slight at first, has vastly increased, but not at a constant rate per unit of time.

But we get something more like the gravitation law if we start far enough away. A body starting from the distance of the fixed stars would have but an infinitesimal speed under the earth's gravitation and would gain but little until quite near the earth, when its velocity would rapidly approach that of surface gravity. So mankind, starting far off, has only gained a great velocity of progress when apparently close to its goal. But does that mean that its career is nearly ended? Is it about to expire in excess of splendor? Surely not right away.—Copyright, 1929, International Feature Service, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Professor Dyer, of Vanderbilt university, hits the mark when he says in a public address that democratic government with a great, intelligent leadership is a failure. "The founders of our government," he says, "meant it to be run on a majority rule system for and of, but not by the people. The people couldn't run a peanut stand successfully, much less a successful government."

Professor Dyer, who is one of the most famous and able students of government in America, believes the country needs a responsible aristocracy. It's not a popular word—but he's probably right.

"During the darkest hour of my life no word of sympathy or offer of help from any member of my family came to me, and I hungered for it as the wanderer in the desert thirsts for water. The pride that kept me silent as a neglected and unwanted child stayed with me through life."

These words, to be found in the will of the great motion picture actor, Theodore Roberts, are chill with tragedy. One's indifference to people in general, even to fairly well-known acquaintances, can be easily understood. Some people are by temperament indifferent, uncommunicative, undemonstrative. But to withhold sympathy and help from a member of one's family is indicative of the failure to grow up out of savagery and barbarism of the lowest order.

To find that sort of disloyalty among civilized people is always a disheartening discovery.

It was all most ingenious, and Mr Sutherland had loved it all But now he perceived a psychological flaw in this organization The visitor having rung without getting a reply, could not be sure whether or not the apparatus was in order Supposing the distant bell was for some reason not functioning! A terrible thought! Mr Sutherland after a further pause, opened the double doors into the corridor and looked forth Yes the white light symbolic of his desire for the waiter was burning over his door and burning brightly steadily patiently, waiting for the waiter But had the bell rung Mr Sutherland could not and did not know He did not even know where the bell was to be found Silence and solitude in the long corridor! Dozens of doors and only one of them illuminated Mr Sutherland felt

Septimus felt himself to be a victim, and yet somehow guilty, the white light cried to accuse him of something He was at a loss He knew not what to do His great gift for organizing had been rendered futile He hesitated most absurdly, to step out into the hostile wilderness of the corridor At last he did step out, and it was as though he had gone over the top in battle Then Mr Sutherland saw a waiter in the distance, and stepped back into the ambush of the doorway and halted the waiter at the moment of passing the door The waiter, startled out of his professional self control, gave Septimus a look of murderous hatred

The glance covered perhaps the tenth of a second and was instaneously succeeded by the conventional acquiescent smile of his calling but Septimus had noted it and was afraid in his heart for the glance seemed to symbolize and lay bare the awful secret antagonism which divides the servers from the served—seed of revolutions Septimus even feared for his life for he was in a strange and sinister city where lives were worth much less than in London and some people might possibly find their advantage in the sudden death of Septimus * * * Pooh! Ridiculous!

Please bring me the menu Mr Sutherland speaking in English, addressed the waiter whom he had never seen before And he carefully spoke as one man to another in order to indicate his belief in the dogma that all men are equal before heaven

I shall dine here in my room And when you serve the dinner let me have the bill with it—Accepted You understand I am leaving tonight

The waiter smiled charmingly to indicate his belief in the dogma that the least wish of a visitor is a law to the waiter He smiled bowed and departed He had understood only two words menu and bill

Mr Sutherland felt reassured though he had had a shock

After a brief delay the waiter returned without the menu and made a long foreign speech to Mr Sutherland not a word of which did Mr Sutherland comprehend The black coated fellow was one of those waiters prevalent in the splendid hotels of distant and picturesque lands who can speak no language but their own and sometimes not even that Ten words of English or French may suffice a waiter for the common affair of human natures daily food but in a crisis they quickly prove inadequate

Mr Sutherland saw that this was a crisis He could speak Sutherland French slowly and he now did so But the waiters face was an amiable blank before the persuasions of Sutherland French

'Menu menu menu! Carte carte carte!' Mr Sutherland repeated firmly and kindly but foolishly

The waiter shook his head At last Mr Sutherland in blank despair waved him from the room

Is it conceivable thought Septimus that in a hotel with the pretensions of the Splendide they should place you at the mercy of the servants with whom it is impossible to communicate?' He saw that it was conceivable and sighed

There was only one thing to do—namely to adventure forth into the general public and promiscuity of the vast hotel The necessity for so doing oppressed Mr Sutherland strangely

Dinnerless Diners

The two principal public rooms of the Splendide were the lounge and the restaurant They lay side by side separated by a wall of glass and they were both vast and both ultra or super gorgeous Every square foot of their walls and ceilings were decorated with the last extreme of decorated in either oils fresco mosaic porphyry gilt or bronze On the ceiling alone, of the lounge were depicted in various mediums over 70 slim and beautiful young women in a high state of physical development and chiefly in the fashion of Eden perilously toeing the dubious society of 30 or 40 fauns and satyrs whose moral code seemed to illustrate the joyous effrontery of a past age and who had no preoccupations about rates taxes the weather or class warfare The colors of this ideal world were rich fresh and brilliant for it was only in the previous year that the designers had finished spending two million lire in the creation of the Splendide, which was meant to correspond and indeed did respond to the secret aspirations of the elite of Cincinnati, Leeds, Buenos Aires Philadelphia Bath, and Boston (Mass)

From the lounge through the gilded crystal partition could be seen the equally opulent restaurant full of tables richly set with napery cutlery glass and flowers, and perambulated by many restless waiters And not one diner at any of the tables though the hour was after 8 30!

While the forlorn restaurant—held waiters but no guests, the lounge held guests but no waiters Twenty three guests were congregated together in the middle of the huge parquetted floor upon which on normal evenings they were accustomed to dance A small number for so large a hotel but the season had scarcely started moreover the Splendide much depended for its customers upon the arrival and departure of transatlantic and trans Mediterranean steamships and no important boat had arrived or departed now for several days The present guests were chiefly not mere migrants but steady supporters of the hotel and the city whose purpose was to stay and see and leave quantities of good money behind them Of the 23 15 were Americans five English and the rest of doubtful origin 17 were women and the rest men Their anxious and perturbed demeanor was in dismal contrast with that of the gaudy carefree inhabitants of the ceiling kingdom overhead

The Gentleman of Zest

Alone among them a tall dark, massive, romantic gentleman of 40 years or so seemed to be enjoying life He was fat, and it might have been said that the pores of his stretched skin, being open, exuded gayety, and that gayety escaped frothing from his lips As lightly, with little mincing steps of his small toes, he moved about gesticulating and chatting with an inner group of ladies, he had the air of being continuously animated by a private and particular zest of his own. His manner was easy and affable, to the point of patronage, for he knew that he was adored.

Suddenly this gentleman noticed afar off, in one of the arched entrances to the great lounge, a solitary hesitant individual in a tweed suit.

Ha!' exclaimed the gentleman of zest. "Ha!' he called out, more loudly, smiling as it were secretly to himself.

And all the company turned and gazed at the individual under the arch, immensely and yet with respect His tweed suit exhibited at such an hour in such a place as the lounge of the Splendide of course offended the sense of propriety of every awful low tail, dinner-jacket and evening frock on the floor Also the company beheld a man who, during the fortnight of his mysterious stay in the hotel had systematically by the blank repudiating look on his superior face, discouraged the advances of those visitors who liked to be sociable and who resented a repudiating look The man indeed had not exchanged a word with a single soul in the hotel servants excepted Why was he in the hotel at all? He seemed never to indulge in any of the usual and proper sight-seeing excursions Who was he? Nobody knew anything about him beyond his name What justification had he for being so stand offish? * * * Nevertheless the company had respect for the man If only because he was so strictly loyal to the dying British tradition of keeping oneself to oneself And further the company somewhat pitied him for the shyness and diffidence which obviously were mingled with his amazing self complacency

The man thus criticized was Septimus' who had been to the managerial offices and found them deserted The gaze of the crowd certainly incommoded him and made him wish for the gift of invisibility Like most persons however Septimus had not one mind but quite a number of minds And while in one of his minds he felt clashed in another of his minds he was saying What an ignorant lot they are. They don't guess that I once stroked Cambridge They don't guess that I was once called to the bar They haven't a suspicion in their silly heads that I am the Sutherland Septimus Sutherland who abandoned the bar for finance and became something of a power in the city and richer and more important than anybody else in this hotel, I lay Probably they've never heard of Septimus Sutherland It hadn't occurred to them that I'm here on what's called big business—indeed the biggest and most I've been taking risks that would frighten the boldest of em And won't And won't Well it amuses me—their ignorance does And it amuses me to look a bit bashful and awkward What do I care really? Fact is I rather like being taken for a nobody by nobodies

You Know What's Happened

And still another of his minds held the thought I may be the agent Septimus Sutherland but I am also a perfect ass! It's a holy nuisance to be self conscious like this"

He kept a tactical silence

You know what's happened of course' the gentleman of zest proceeded

I do not Mr Sutherland replied bland amiable and now rather less self conscious under the bombarding stares After all he was not unaccustomed to handling shareholders of limited companies at annual meetings

Because he did not care to talk across a great empty space of floor he unwittingly advanced toward the crowd in the center of the lounge The gentleman of zest went to meet him

Mr Sutherland had on previous occasions taken this individual for a foreigner but his English was simple that of Kensington

A strike in the kitchens!' exclaimed the gentleman of zest and his zest seemed to ooze forth from him Apparently he saw in the situation a rich and juicy humor that he thought nobody else could see He paused and looked humorously at the floor as if sharing the joke with the parquetry Then Or perhaps not a strike because strikes are forbidden by law in this country But at any rate an omission to work Some trouble with the management Plenty of cold food in the kitchens but the waiters will not serve it Sympathetic inaction no doubt Hence we are all hungry with no prospect of a dinner I am Count Veruda

Septimus felt a great relief He had been vaguely suspecting upstairs some kind of a machination against himself a powerful man whom unprincipled opponents might find it convenient to put away He now saw that the machination if any, was directed against all the guests equally Moreover the *performance of the in*comprehensible floor waiter upstairs stood explained Septimus pleasantly savored the situation

I see said Septimus almost at ease Where is the manager '

Ha! said Count Veruda The manager has prudently disappeared

I see Septimus repeated quite at ease Now supposing we went into the kitchens and fetched this food for our selves Already he had begun to frame out the organization of such a raid

I am told by the maitre d hotel who is entirely on our side, that that might cause really serious complications

I see said Septimus for the third time 'But there are restaurants in the city '

'Not a good one And we could hardly go in a body to any one restaurant We should burst it And as for going separately many single ladies would not care to venture on such a course—in a town like this' The count smiled within and without, and his body seemed to vibrate with rich fun

There are other hotels"

'If we went to another hotel, the fact would be instantly known and the kitchen staff there might adopt the same tactics as the kitchen staff here Solidarity' Solidarity!" The Count had completed his case very happily

Mr Sutherland had frequently noticed the word "solidarity" in newspaper accounts of altercations between labor and capital, and now for the first time really understood its significance He glanced around at the stricken faces of the well-dressed, well-fed but hungry crowd. In every face he saw precisely what he was beginning to feel in his own heart, namely, the gradual terrible, disturbed realization of the utter instability and insecurity of society. All had been well, and now all was ill The members of the groups, and Septimus, had been nurtured in the

AL JOLSON was the best money-getter in 1928 for the movies And this despite the fact that comparatively few theaters are wired for sound and talkies For individual drawing power Clara Bow is rated second to Jolson believe it or not Jolson displaced Harold Lloyd who held the leadership in 1927

The talkies have just the movie fans as and it will be interesting to see in the next year just how many stars will still be in the limelight

We are quoting here several paragraphs from Variety the theatrical magazine on the passing of a number of stars

Though the film companies may be reluctant to admit it when the computation for 1929 is made it will be found that a very large percentage of 1928 stars will be missing from the payroll groups One of the biggest companies it is known will have four stars away from its fold another equally as big will continue of 1928 stars will be missing a great deal in years gone by but today are all at the box office

Teams Discontinued

The team transitions practically ceased to exist during 1928 Paramount which had a great number of them and took on all broke up nearly all of them and for the coming year it is said will have none The Berry Hatton double combination great but long passed all together Bancroft Brent also destined for the scrap heap with the Hall Taylor team broken up also the Wray Cooper and with Esther Ralston and Florence Vidor taken out of the star group and listed among the supporting players

'M G M is doing away with the Dane Arthur combine broke up the Haines doubling by making him a star and bringing him way to the front in drawing ranks The only U A combination is Banky Colman is through with U A doing away with the Murray Sidney combination and at present having only the co-starring contract Mackaill and Mackaill

Not a chance conception ... but a deliberate plan ...

Chrysler's matching of slender profile radiator with cowl bar moulding has its origin in the refinement of motif in the historic frieze of the ancient Parthenon

Chrysler's New Style is Based on Authentic Canons of Classic Beauty

Chrysler engineering has achieved something never done before in motor car design.

It has searched out authentic forms of beauty which have come down the centuries unsurpassed and unchallenged and has translated them in terms of motor car beauty and motor car utility.

The lengths to which Chrysler designers have gone in this patient pursuit of beauty will doubtless prove a revelation to those who have probably accepted Chrysler symmetry and charm as fortunate but more or less accidental conceptions

The Chrysler process goes far deeper than any charming but fortuitous design.

For, Chrysler has left nothing to chance.

Chrysler has not relied alone upon the inspiration of individual designers.

Chrysler in its newest products—has found that there are so many glorious precedents and inspirations in art, architecture and design, that the search for authentic and harmonious symmetry can actually be reduced to something like a scientific system in which results are certain.

New Chrysler "65"—Six body styles priced from $1040 to $1145 . . New Chrysler "75"—Nine body styles priced from $1535 to $2345 . . . New Chrysler Imperial—Five custom styles priced from $2675 to $3475. All prices f. o. b. Detroit. (130)

Columbus Pianist To Be Heard Here Next Week in Lecture-Recital Program

Marie Hertenstein Waller Engaged as Guest Artist for Tuesday Night Recital To Be Given at Star Auditorium

Marie Hertenstein Waller, Columbus pianist, at right well-known in musical circles there, will appear with the chorus of the Marion Lecture-Recital club Tuesday night at the Star auditorium as a guest artist of the club.

Referred to in press notices as a true artist, musical scholar and possessing a regal and winning personality, Mrs. Waller has planned an unusually interesting and varied program for her appearance in this city.

The program outlined by Mrs. Waller will include "Caprice, genre Scarlatti," Paderewski, "Melodie," Gluck-Sgambati, "Ballet des ombres Heureuses," Gluck-Friedman, "Impromptu, F. Sharp," Chopin, "Sevedilla," (Castillian Dance,) Albeniz and "Concert Arabesques," Strauss-Schultz-Erler, "The Beautiful Blue Danube."

Chorus Numbers

The opening number of the club chorus, "Legend of the Dandelion," Clokey, will include soprano solos by Mrs. Edith Kanzler-Unger, of Bucyrus, director of the club chorus and contralto solos by Mrs. Lelia Moore. "Croon, Croon, Underneat' de Moon," Clutsam, "Listen to the Lambs," Batt and "A Mother Goose Arabesque," Tukey, will be included in the numbers presented by the chorus.

Mrs. Waller, who is known not only in Columbus, but throughout the country, as an artist, received her musical training under Leschetizky, Arthur Schnabel and Ignatz Friedman, covering a period of 10 years in her studies. She has appeared with the Cincinnati, Detroit, and Russian Symphony orchestras, as well as on recital programs.

A New York debut at Town Hall, Nov. 5, 1921, established her reputation in that city.

Heads of Bethel No. 2 Installed at Masonic Temple

Miss Lenore Bondley was installed as queen of Bethel No. 2, Job's Daughters, yesterday afternoon at Masonic temple, with her staff of officers for the coming year. Miss Roberta Roberts, past queen, presided during preparations for installation.

Installed with Miss Bondley were the following: Miss Florence Sweney, senior princess; Miss Enid Little, junior princess; Miss Mary Guthrie, guide; Miss Doris Martin, marshal; Miss Ruth Johnson, secretary; Miss Vivian Shackelford, treasurer; Miss Mildred Nixon, pianist; Miss Margaret Livingston, senior custodian; Miss Annabelle Crawford, junior custodian; Miss Marvel Schorr, first messenger; Miss Clara Mae Uncapher, second messenger; Miss Cleo Danner, third messenger; Miss Nellie Rockwell, fourth messenger; Miss Ethel Bray, fifth messenger; Miss Jane Guthery, chaplain; Miss Jane Bradley, librarian; Miss Naomi Waddell, inner guard; Miss Edyth Gallcher, outer guard; Miss Sarah Mabel Hurd, train bearer.

It was decided to contribute to the Washington Memorial Association fund. Music for the meeting was furnished by Mrs. Delbert Hunter and Mrs. C. Dewitt Shadaker. Lunch was served following the installation.

CALEDONIA SCHOOL PUPILS GIVE PLAY

CALEDONIA, Jan. 12—The operetta, "The Kidnapping of Santa Claus," given in the school auditorium Thursday afternoon by the grade pupils, under the direction of Miss Elizabeth Sager, music supervisor, was well presented and highly appreciated by the good attendance present.

No one who "goes on and makes a great success"is ever quite sure it was worth sacrificing all the possible friendships of his youth for.

Just Things

BY EDNA S. DUTTON

ALL THE BUNK

THERE are those who maintain that what one enjoys doing, work or play, they do well, but I take exceptions in at least one instance and that is in the gentle art of bowling. Just how long I have been pursuing this pastime really doesn't matter, inasmuch as it is long enough to have acquired a fair knowledge of the rules and technique of the game. But alas, my trusty digits lack the cunning necessary to raise my score to the three figure column. I feel that I am consistent, and how. Surely, persistency, like virtue has its own reward and that some day my score will bring home the bacon.

• • •

CLASS IN GRAMMAR

WHAT is your pet bogey when it comes to butchering his majesty's English? It has been suggested that a column be conducted instructing those prone to go in for this sort of thing, the error of their ways, from a grammatical standpoint. It's very nice, of course, to suggest this boon to suffering humanity, it not only will boost the offender up another round on the road to perfection, but think what it would spare the nerves of the one announced. But what of the one sitting in the teacher's chair? In this day when one is shot for biting their own fingernails or asking for a second helping of apple pie, what chance would they have when it came to passing out the criticism on one's pet pronunciation?

• • •

FOR BUSINESS GIRL

FOR the tired business girl who is her own chief cook and bottle washer this is suggested for an appetizing, nourishing and last but not least, easy to prepare meal: sausages baked with apples, mashed potatoes, celery, rolls, sponge cake with peach sauce and coffee. Arrange the sausages in a shallow pan, pricking each one several times with a fork. Core apples, but do not pare. Cut in slices one-half inch thick and arrange around sausages. Bake in a hot oven for about 15 minutes.

Daphne

An Unusual Romance of Love and Sacrifice

BY HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER SIXTY-FOUR

J[illegible] what happened between John [illegible] and Ralph McKevitt on that [illegible]ble Monday morning after [illegible] Winters' innocence was establ[illegible] was something Daphne never [illegible] They were closeted together [illegible] in the old man's private [illegible]

[illegible] for her finally, and she [illegible] with pencil and notebook, trying to breathe naturally, and biting [illegible] lower lip to stop its absurd [illegible]ng.

[illegible] man looked at her curiously from [illegible] his shaggy, overhanging [illegible] "You don't look well, my [illegible]

[illegible] my dear," Ralph flushed un[illegible]ably, and shifted his position. He did not see the sneer that curled his haggard mouth, but the old man did, and smiled. He was quiet and polite. "Did [illegible] say something, Ralph?"

McKevitt shot him a look of absolute hate from his harassed, bloodshot eyes. "No," he said as insolently as he dared. "I have nothing to say. You're made that clear."

"Mm, that's good," Greely mumbled. "Nothing like understanding each other. A little late, but better late than never. As I was saying, Daphne, you don't look well."

"I'm quite well, thank you," she said quite steadily.

"Ralph tells me you are going to be married," he went on, mildly, his shrewd eyes never leaving her face. "He says it is an affair of long standing. Is that right, Daphne?"

She looked at Ralph for help, but he sat staring at the floor, his chalky face devoid of all expression.

"Why didn't you tell me before?" the old man persisted. "I might have done something to—er—make the path of true love smoother. As it is, it is . . . Mmm . . . going to be rough."

When it was evident that Daphne was incapable of speech the younger man burst out angrily, "Of course it is right! You don't have to ask her! She gave me her word. Long ago. Call me a liar if you want to, but it's true!"

Greely ignored him. "Would it make a difference to know that he's only a salaried man now—a small salaried man?"

"Two hundred and fifty to start," Ralph put it hostily. "You may as well know the worst. I told Greely we couldn't live on that!"

The worst! Daphne stifled an hysterical desire to laugh! As if being poor would matter! As if Ralph's future success or failure could make any difference . . . after the thing he had done . . .

"You'll probably have to keep your job," he went on, "I can't support you on two hundred and fifty!"

"But you don't have to marry me!" she cried. Her whole being was suddenly transformed. Her dull eyes lit up with hope, her sagging back-bone stiffened. "Whatever made you think you did! Who Ralph, I don't want to get married!"

The old man turned from her to Ralph and back again without a flicker of expression on his thin, hawk like face. He pulled on his moustache.

Ralph's jaw dropped. "You don't want to—get married? You're turning me down? My God, Daphne—you're—you're failing me now? When I trusted you. I depended on you . . . oh my God!" He began to walk up and down distractedly. "She did promise?" he whined "I didn't tell you any lie, Mr. Greely! She did—she did!"

His breath came brokenly, his face was convulsed. Daphne was suddenly terribly afraid. Afraid he would break down, before pitiless Mr. Greely.

"Yes, I promised," she said, and came and stood beside him, her hands on his arm.

Instantly he was the old Ralph, triumphant. He gathered her to him, possessively. "There! What did I tell you!" he cried, "Didn't I say she was crazy about me! Say, when a girl is willing to marry on two hundred and fifty these days she's in love!"

The old man watched impassively. He had nothing to say.

Ralph seemed unconscious alike of the old man's silence, and Daphne's frozen quiet. While he was extravagantly kissing her hands, and murmuring brokenly to her, the phone rang.

"Hello!" Greely growled.

"This is Miss Garroty," Crystal's voice came sweetly over the wire "You don't know me, and I wouldn't bother you if it weren't frightfully necessary. Mr. Greely, I'm Ralph McKevitt's friend, and I know you know him so well—he's spoken so beautifully of you so often—and there's a matter of importance . . . could you tell me where I can get him? I've tried and tried his house—"

"Hold on—he's right here,' the old man said, and then to Ralph, "I hate to interrupt you, but there's another lady—"

Ralph answered nervously . . . "Yes . . . All right . . . In a few moments . . ."

He turned to the two who were listening. "It's—it's something unexpected. Will you excuse me? I'll be right back—"

When he had gone Daphne gathered up her note book and pencils and turned to go, too But her wobbly knees failed her. They wouldn't hold her up. With a little despairing cry she sank into the chair, and wept.

"Oh, he'll come back," Greely murmured cynically.

"That's why I'm crying," Daphne sobbed. "Because he will—and you can't go back on a man when he's down—you taught me that yourself!"

* * *

"Something awful has happened!" Crystal told Ralph over the telephone. "They've found out about us . . . the janitor saw you going out that morning . . . they're going to put me out . . . you've got to come! Come quick!"

Of course this thing had come up now. Just when he had declared his engagement to Daphne. He had thought it would save him from the penitentiary Greely would never send him up if it would hurt Daphne. he thought too much of her for that. 'Too damn much!" he thought, remembering the "my dear" and the incident of the car. And Daphne had said she didn't want to get married Afraid she would lose her hold on Greely no doubt.

"She's crazy about me, all right," he told himself grimly, driving up the hill to Crystal's apartment, "but I'm going to have to keep an eye on her. I won't have any wife of mine cheating on me. Greely can put that in his pipe and smoke it. And that pup Winters too. He needn't come any holier than thou with me, either. This business isn't all cleared up yet.

"If he didn't have pretty damn good reasons for clearing out when he did, he wouldn't have. Just let them wait a while They'll find out that Ralph Iverson McKevitt isn't down and out yet. Greely better pull in his horns too, or I'll spill a few things I know on him. I could get him ruled out of the Bar Association. I guess he's afraid of me, or he wouldn't have backed down and given me the chance as salesman.

"If he dared bring this thing out in court he'd have done his damnedest to send me to jail all right. It's where he'd like to see me. Friendship for my father, bah! I'm not my father! He never did intend to send me up. If I hadn't lost my head like a fool and dragged Daphne in, I wouldn't have had to marry her. I'd have been safe enough without her . . . what'll I do about Crystal? The only true friend I ever had! Her heart'll break when she hears about Daphne—"

He was still wondering how he would ever tell her, when he parked at her door and hurried on up the stairs.

He was out of breath, and trembling with emotion when he gained the inner door, and rapped—the old signal.

TO GIVE RECITAL

Organ Program Will Observe Dedication Anniversary

GALION, Jan. 12—Prominent among winter musical events of local interest is the organ recital scheduled for Jan. 22, when W. E. Pilcher of the Pilcher organ company of Louisville, will give an anniversary recital in the high school auditorium. It will be the third anniversary of the dedication of the high school pipe organ which was the gift of Mrs. D. M. Freese of this city.

Mr Pilcher will be assisted by his wife who is a violinist of experience and who will give a group of selections. The concert is being arranged by Miss Bessie Todd of the Fine Arts department of Galion high school and will be the first organ recital of the season.

'Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M LEWIS

VALENTINE DAY will be one month from Monday. Maybe if I can get some chink I will get a valentine for Feeble for getting me out from staying after school last night. I asked her if she knowed she lied and she said she didn't lie She said she didn't tell the teacher that my mother said to come and tell the teacher that my mother wanted me, she said, she only told the teacher my mother wanted me, and she said every mother wants her boy. I said "That's right; some mothers are so silly that they even want girls." That was after I had let Jubilee down and had put on my britches and went down and done my work and fed my face and went outside with some pancakes I had swiped for Jubilee. When I said that Feeble gave me a push, and the ground was so slippery that I had a hard time to keep from falling, and by the time I had got my balance I had swung way around with my back to the bunch and was all stooped over, and then just as I was going to straighten up someone put their foot against my bussel and gave me a shove and I spraddled out as flat as a carpet. I thought it was Feeble, and I got up and was brushing myself and she looked at me kinda funny and said, "I never thought you would let the Lost Bag of Tripe do you thataway." So when she said that I made a jump for him, but he ducked and ekun out and I chaseted him all the way to the front gate before I was sure I couldn't catch him. When I went back the bunch was laughing and Feeble said what was I chasing him for, and I said for pushing me over, and then she said he didn't push me over. When I told her she said he did she said she didn't say anything of the kind, and when I thought it over she hadn't. She is altogether too smart, and just for that she won't get a valentine on Valentine Day unless she gets a funny one.

We all went over to go to Miss Parmers but we saw Old Man Scanlan out in the yard sawing wood so we went over there, and he said he bet I was the best wood sawer in the bunch, so I sawed a stick and he kept his watch out and marked down my time. Then each of the other fellas sawed one and he took down their time, and then he said me and Nibs and the Lost Bag of Tripe was tied, and there was just three big sticks left, and we each sawed one, and we worked so fast the saw almost smoked. Then Old Man Scanlan grinned and said, "Our any little boy or girl till me who won?" and Feeble said, "Yes sir," and he said, "That's right," and he took an armful of wood and went in. And we looked at each other and groaned; and then we all went skulking. I am not so very lonie.

Love's Awakening

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affection

BY ADELE GARRISON

Another Scheme Is Afoot

"WE'VE been watching for you for hours," Carolyn Brixton exclaimed explosively, stressing almost every other word in schoolgirl fashion. "I thought you never would come. I didn't dare go over to the school—new girls aren't expected until tomorrow, you know—but I thought maybe when you came, you'd let me get just a peek at things."

"Of course," Marion said capably, "and—I don't know—maybe Mrs. Barnes—just wait—I have a scheme, oh, hello! Ronald! You here, too?"

She held out her hand to Carolyn's brother nonchalantly, and I mentally applauded her poise. That her eyes had spied him on the hotel veranda before we stopped the car, I was quite sure, but there was no hint of such knowledge in her face or voice. She was growing up fast, our little Marion.

Helena Brixton came down the steps with the slow languid grace always investing her, and greeted us warmly.

"How pleasant it is to be here together!" she said. "I'm sorry Sam and Charles can't be here. But they want to explore the country round about here. Sam has some idea about developing a summer resort, I believe. So they took the small car and went away almost as soon as we reached here. They won't be back until tomorrow afternoon. Can you stay until then?"

"I'm afraid not," Lillian told her. "You see Marion will be settled at school tonight, so there won't be any vital reason for our staying. It's too far to drive back again tonight, though. "We'll start back sometime tomorrow forenoon."

"Then you won't see Sam," Mrs. Brixton said regretfully, "but it will be so nice to have you that long, anyway."

"Helena Brixton is the sweetest soul alive," Lillian said the first time we were by ourselves, "but she is also the most easily duped. She's really sincere in thinking that Sam and I would regret not seeing each other. I suppose he's told her that the old quarrel was all made up, and she hasn't the slightest idea that this summer resort development is colossal camouflage on Sam's part."

"I wondered at her telling about it so openly and artlessly," I commented. "There were other people within hearing."

"Of course," Lillian returned, "if Sam Brixton were contemplating the buying of land for a summer resort, he wouldn't let a word of it be breathed, and I'm very sure Helena would be the last person he would tell, for she has the indiscretion of a woman to whom all business is a cryptogram. No, he told her purposely, hoping that some of the natives would hear her spilling it to us. He's the cunningest thing going that way. He has some object in exploring this country, you may be sure, but it isn't a real estate development. However, I should fret! I was dreading having to meet him again. Now I can settle down, relax, and really enjoy the next twenty-four hours."

The last part of her anticipation may have been realized, but there was neither settling down nor relaxing for either of us during the remainder of the day. Lillian vetoed going over to the school until we had had luncheon, and Marion, from whom she expected violent objections, was surprisingly complaisant when she discovered that the Brixtons had waited luncheon hoping for our arrival. I had noticed Marion and Ronald talking earnestly together just before luncheon, and I was not surprised when after luncheon, Marion came into the room where Lillian and I were putting on our hats for our trip to the school, and spoke hesitantly.

"Mums, may I ask you something?" she said.

I moved promptly toward the door, but Marion threw out a protesting hand.

"No, no, Auntie Madge," she said. "I want you to stay."

There was a distinct appeal in the glance she threw me, and I guessed that she was counting on my aid.

FENN BILL BATTLE OPENED IN SENATE

Measure Would Give Growing States More Congressmen

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—A campaign for passage of the Fenn reapportionment bill, which would give fast-growing states more congressmen at the expense of states standing still or losing in population, was opened in the Senate today, following the smashing victory won by backers of the measure in the house.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg, Republican of Michigan, which state probably would gain four members of the house under a new reapportionment, announced he would immediately begin a fight for quick action in the senate.

The Fenn bill, passed by the house without a record vote after a motion to recommit was defeated, 226 to 171, provides that the reapportionment shall be made after the 1930 census. If the first congress after the census fails to act, however, the reapportionment would be made automatic by requiring the secretary of commerce to fix the number of representatives for each state and directing the clerk of the house to notify the states.

The bill contains a protest against the practice of the house in enlarging its membership in past reapportionments to prevent states from losing members, by providing that the membership shall be retained at 435.

Twenty-eight states probably would either gain or lose members of the house, under present estimates of the 1930 census.

SLATER LOOKS FOR NEW DEVELOPMENT

Arthur Arnold Questioned by Detective, Police Officials

WOOSTER, Jan. 12—Developments of major importance were expected today in the disappearance mystery of Melvin Horst, four-year-old Orrville boy who dropped from sight Dec. 27, last, according to Detective Ora Slater, who has been retained to conduct the investigation.

Arthur Arnold was brought face to face with Junior Hanna and Tommy Johnson at the city prison here this morning, and questioned by Slater and police officials. The Hanna boy has repeatedly declared he left Melvin in an alley adjoining the Arnold home in Orrville; and that Arthur and Buscom McHenry came out of the house and called to Melvin. Since that moment he has not been seen.

Arnold, McHenry, two other Arnolds, Elias and William, and Mrs. McHenry are under indictment for child-stealing in the Horst mystery. They entered pleas of not guilty when arraigned yesterday. No date for their trial has been set.

BUILDINGS BURNED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—A spectacular fire, which authorities feared for a time might sweep through the downtown business section, caused damage estimated at $100,000 early today. It started in the Dalbo and Martin store and, fanned by a high wind, spread sparks over a wide area on G and F streets.

KILLED BY BULL

Isaac Moneysmith Succumbs at Galion Home

GALION, Jan. 12—Isaac Moneysmith, 83, died at his home, 734 South Boston st., Friday morning following a serious illness due to complications. Mr. Moneysmith has been a life resident of Galion was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Moneysmith and was born here Oct. 5, 1845.

His marriage to Mary E. Smith took place June 1, 1865. His widow survives with one son, Clarence F. Moneysmith, also of this city. He leaves one sister, Mrs. Sarah Dotte, of Hicksville.

Mr. Moneysmith was a painter and worked at his trade until a comparatively few years ago. The funeral services at which the Rev. Joseph Lamy of Market Street Methodist church will officiate, will be held Monday from the home at 2 o'clock with burial following in Fairview cemetery.

8 MEN ARE KILLED AS PLANE CRASHES

Army Ship Fails To Clear Tree; Probe Is Started

MIDDLETOWN, Pa., Jan. 12 — The death toll in the tragic crash of the army transport plane C-2 near here yesterday mounted to eight today when Serg. Patrick Conroy of Somerville, Mass., the lone soldier who had survived the disaster, passed away at Polyclinic hospital in the nearby city of Harrisburg. Conroy, who had received a fractured skull and internal injuries, died at 1:50 o'clock this morning.

Five of the other seven men in the plane were killed instantly, and two died in Harrisburg hospitals soon after the crash.

Two investigations into the disaster are under way.

The bodies of all eight men in the plane were crushed when the big ship rolled over three times in a yard near the postoffice at Royalton, near here, after a wing caught in a tree. The three motors of the huge Fokker machine, a sister ship of the famous Question Mark, apparently had gone dead and the pilot could not find a large open field in which to make a safe landing.

The plane had just left the army air depot here on a return flight to Rockwell field. Unable to gain altitude, according to spectators, the plane started to quiver when less than 200 feet in the air and plunged to the earth, turning over as it fell.

MORTON SENTENCE COMMUTED TODAY

"Big Jim" Gains Reduction Through Decree of Donahey

COLUMBUS, Jan. 12—The sentence of James Morton, better known as "Big Jim" Morton, was commuted today by Gov. Vic Donahey. Morton is serving five years to 15 years in the Ohio penitentiary for robbery, imposed by a Cleveland court.

The commutation, the governor explained, is to expire whenever Morton is paroled by the state clemency board.

Morton was first received at the pen in 1920. He was later granted a new trial and again convicted, being returned to the institution in February, 1923, under the same sentence. At the request of Detroit authorities Morton was paroled in 1925 and taken to Detroit where he was to be tried for bank robbery.

SENATE STARTS ON LENGTHY CALENDAR

Seeks To Clean Up Legislation To Avoid Special Session

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—With the Kellogg-Briand peace treaty near ratification, administration leaders in the senate today turned their attention to the rapidly-growing calendar of legislative business in the hope of clearing it in time to avoid a special session directly after March 4.

The senate's calendar includes the new cruiser bill, with its $25,000,000 increase in prohibition enforcement funds and a $75,000,000 item for tax refunds, the report of the special committee which investigated forged Mexican and Russian documents, the Caraway cotton and grain future act, the house reapportionment bill and a dozen less important measures. There are only seven weeks before adjournment.

The hopes of administration leaders for a vote today on the Kellogg pact appeared doomed in the face of the desire of senators to prolong debate. There were indications though, that an agreement might be reached to vote Monday although that day has been set aside for action on the deficiency bill, and on the report on forged documents, so a vote on the treaty may be postponed until Tuesday.

$11,000 WATER BILL IS PAID BY CITY

Settlement of Overdue Account Forestalls Shutting Off of Service

Differences between the city of Marion and the Marion Water Co. were amicably settled Friday afternoon when officials of the city sent a check for $11,000 to George Whysall, general manager of the water company.

The money paid the utility company was due the first of last October for six months water rental. At that time the city was unable to meet the bill due to the money having been transferred to other appropriations.

Failure to pay the money brought forth a statement from Mr. Whysall that his company was contemplating shutting off the city water unless arrangements were made to pay the overdue bill.

Following the statement of Mr. Whysall, city officials immediately started negotiations to procure an advance draft from the county treasurer to be charged against the city's share of taxes when the funds are distributed the first of March.

This draft was obtained yesterday and the bill immediately paid to the Water Co. Another six-months bill will be due the first of April and city officials say that it will be met promptly.

BUCYRUS REQUESTS ORDER'S REVERSAL

Council Protests Against Findings in Sewage Disposal Problems

BUCYRUS, Jan. 12 — A formal protest against the findings of the state board of health, given in an order by Dr. John E. Monger, state director of health Dec. 14, 1928, directing the city of Bucyrus to install works or means satisfactory to the director of health, for collecting and disposing of the sewage of the city in a manner to correct and prevent the pollution of the Sandusky river, by Dec. 14, 1929, was filed by members of the city council, at a meeting held Friday night. The protest, was given by the opinion of the finance committee and was submitted through the chairman of the finance committee, Councilman Metzger.

During last night's council meeting, City Solicitor J. W. Miller, and probate judge elect, tendered his resignation, effective Feb. 1, at which time he will enter upon his new duties. His successor was not named.

Before presenting his resignation Mr. Miller, presented to council the findings of Attorney General Turner, in regard to the proposal of the city to lease a tract of land south of the city corporation for municipal airport purposes. The attorney general's opinion holds that a municipality can not legally lease lands outside of its corporate limits for purposes of a landing field for aircraft.

Give Reports

Reports for the fiscal year 1928 were given in Mayor Arthur Schuler who recommends the passing of a traffic ordinance, in addition to several other recommendations; by Monnett Memorial hospital, which has a cash balance in the treasury of more than $2,700; by the Chief of Police Philip Trautman, who in his reports also recommends it advisible to purchase a new police car and by the Fire Chief Will Mader.

The following appointments were made by the mayor and passed by council, board of health member for five years, Dr R. J. Cuina, board of sinking fund, four years, C. A. Lingenfelter; member of playground commission, five years, H. A. Paxton; member of civil service commission, Ellis Jones, five years.

It was recommended by council during the coming summer, and that that sections of Highland av., Irving st and Bland av., be improved the city solicitor be instructed to draw up the necessary legislation.

With the view of adding addition improvements to Humiller park during the coming season, it was moved that $500 be added to the city park appropriation making that fund $850.

MID-WINTER SHOW ATTRACTS CROWDS

Individual Entries Total 385 in Hardin County Exposition

KENTON, Jan 12—That the 1929 mid-winter agricultural exposition and automobile show now under way in the Hardin county armory, is the largest in history was the statement made today by officials of the Corn and Grain Improvement association.

A total of 385 individual entries have been listed in the main show and in the vocational agricultural class department. Judging has been started by Willard Kuk, Jeffersonville, and will be completed tonight.

Special prize winner for having the largest number of entries in all classes is John D Keckler, Goshen township, a graduate of the vocational ag department of Kenton high. He listed 37 entries, O. C. Powell, Ada, was second with a total of 24 separate entries.

In the vocational ag department, John Steiner, south of Kenton, had the greatest number of entries in all classes, having a total of 40. Second honors went to A. W. Martin, southwest of the city, with 30 entries.

OFFICER'S CAR STOLEN

COLUMBUS, Jan. 12— That thieves are no respecters of persons was proved here again today. The automobile of W. P. Calvin, Cleveland, president of the Ohio Police Chiefs' association, was stolen last night when he parked his car on a downtown street.

ILLNESS FATAL TO J. W. MOZIER, 92

Aged Resident of Morrow County Succumbs at Daughter's Home

MT. GILEAD—Jan. 12—Joseph W. Mozier, age 92, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. W. Wood, West High st., Thursday night at 11:30 o'clock from influenza and infirmities of age. Mr. Mozier lacked but a few days to reach his ninety-third birthday, which is Jan. 18.

He is survived by two children, Mrs J. W. Wood of Mt. Gilead, and Clarence Mozier, of Edison. He was born in Edison Jan. 18, 1836, the son of Luther and Abbey Mozier. Funeral services will be conducted Monday afternoon at the First Baptist church.

20 GET DIVORCES

12 Women Get Decrees And One Man Is Granted Freedom

MT. GILEAD, Jan 12—A report of the divorce actions of Morrow county for the year 1928 has been released by Clerk T. A. Campbell of the common pleas court, and shows a total of 29 decrees during the year. These were granted by Judge Judge W. P. Vaughan, of the local common pleas bench.

Twelve of the divorces granted were to women, and the most popular complaint was gross neglect, that being the charge of 17 of those who secured divorces. In only three instances were the charges of the plaintiff contested, the other 17 failing to contest the charges. Nine children were affected by the divorces.

With gross neglect being the charge of 17 of the divorcees, wilful absence was the charge of two. One husband secured a divorce because his wife was in the penitentiary.

One husband secured a divorce from his wife after 21 years of wedded life. His charge of gross neglect won him the divorce. Both of the parties had served time in the penitentiary.

The other extreme was reached by a wife who secured a divorce after six months of married life on the grounds of gross neglect.

Spanish Music Will Be

M'DONALD TO TALK

Gypsy Program Feature

Opening with the march "Les Grands" by Jacomot, a program of Spanish music will be broadcast by the A. and P. Gypsies in their weekly broadcast through stations associated with the WEAF network of the National Broadcasting Co. at 8 o'clock Monday night.

The program will continue with Rimsky-Korsakow's "Capriccio Espagnol" an arrangement of Spanish dances in three parts; a Neapolitan folk song "Funiculi Funicula" by Denicontro and the Brazilian national anthem "Samba de Negro" by Vianna.

Under the direction of Gypsy King Harry Horlick, the orchestra will also play the South American song "Ay-Ay-Ay" and the popular selection "You're the Cream in My Coffee."

The Spanish theme will also be carried through the Neapolitan Night program to be broadcast through WJZ and associated radio stations of the NBC system at 9 o'clock Monday night. Joe Biriano, accordionist, will be one of the featured artists during this broadcast.

"Bolivia and Paraguay" will be the subject of James G. McDonald's next talk on South American countries through the WEAF network of the NBC system at 7.30 o'clock Monday night.

A musical melange of popular numbers will entertain radio listeners to the Automatic Duo Discs at 8:30 o'clock Monday night when half-hour of music is broadcast through the WJZ network.

Prolific Pen of Local Stock Company Actor Produces Many Poems and Plays

Wide Range of Themes Show Versatility of Sharpsteen as Writer

BY HALLIE HOUCK
Marion Star Staff Writer

PRACTICALLY all theatrical people have special diversions aside from their professional work and Earnest J. Sharpsteen, member of the Myrtyl Ross Players at the Grand theater, is no exception.

Sharpsteen is a poet and playwright, and a decidedly prolific one. He has written more than a thousand poems and many plays, one and three-act productions.

Listed among his plays are "Red Thread of Guilt," "Fugitives," "Joggin' Along With Jed," "Girl Who Paid," "The Infidel," "Hate," "Lifting Jimmy's Jinx," and "A Rural Belle." His poetry is charming, with most of his rhymes on the subject of love or children. One particularly lilting number had as its theme the first snow here in Marion. The actor loves children and they return his admiration, he says.

Sense of "Snappy" Style

Sharpsteen owns up that he has written several "hot" stories for magazines which feature so-called "true" narratives and says that the standard fiction market is practically monopolized by the "big" writers of the day.

Born in Grand Rapids, Mich., the youngest of 10 children the actor graduated from the Grand Rapids high school and then took a "college course" with circuses. For four summer seasons he was with the Wallace show, with Pawnee Bill, and with an overland circus touring the state of Texas. It was in these shows that Sharpsteen gained his keen knowledge of human nature.

After that, for seven years, Sharpsteen was a member of Wheeler and Sharpsteen, blackface song and dance act. Then came a period of one-piece shows, hits of Broadway, taken on the road. He was leading man in these plays. During his career on the stage, this author-actor has supported William Faversham, the late Tom Wise, Mary Servoss, Lenore Ulric and many other noted players.

15 Years in Stock

For the past 15 years he has been playing in stock, appearing in Pittsburg, Cleveland, Grand Rapids, Louisville, and other large cities. In former years Sharpsteen traveled through here with the Harry Shannon Co. and the Kinsey Comedy Co.

Comparing the prominent leading women with whom he has played, Mr. Sharpsteen says this of Myrtyl Ross: "Myrtyl Ross is just as clever as any of them and far more versatile than a lot of them." He joined the company three weeks before it came here.

Blustering, loving father roles, and mean, mean villians are his favorite types of character. He is confident that as the Chinese merchant in "East Is West," he's a flop. Public opinion is to the contrary, though, and he can't understand it.

Skilled as Swimmer

Swimming is Sharpsteen's favorite sport and during the years 1913 and 1914, he held the backstroke swimming championship and the fancy diving championship of Michigan.

For two years during his eventful life, Sharpsteen was a concert pianist on the lyceum platform, presenting a two-act play of his own, "Hate," on the same bill.

The chief diversion of the actor during the summer months is his summer resort at Robinson Lake, Mich., where he and his 85 year old mother spend their entire time. He has taken photographs galore of his summer paradise. Seven large lots along the lake front, and just off the state highway, provide the area for this pleasant summer hobby.

Sharpsteen was one of a family of 10 children, all but one of whom are living. The father of the family, which was one of the pioneer families of Michigan, died about 15 years ago.

BIRDS POPULAR

More Than 300 Canaries Distributed Here by Drug Stores

MARION probably has more song birds in its houses now than at any time in the city's history, according to reports from local Service drug stoes, which have been giving canaries to customers as a prize feature in connection with sales. More than 300 birds have been distributed since the campaign started Oct. 1.

The birds are imported, from Germany and are Hartz mountain singers.

A big demand for bird cages has resulted from the steady increase in the city's canary population and dealers have been forced to lay in special stocks to meet the demand.

The Service stores will continue the canary awards as a sales feature until April 1, it was announced today.

BUCYRUS NEXT?

WITH Bucyrus looming as the next obstacle on the route of Harding high school's drive toward a basketball championship of the North Central Ohio league, Coach Compton again faces a serious problem in keeping his team in shape mentally for the game.

Last night's victory for the Compton machine may have had one bad effect on the team. A victory over a quintet doped out to win has a tendency to induce a cocky attitude on the part of members of the winning aggregation.

Compton's problem last week was to develop a defense tight enough to halt Mansfield's scoring. This he accomplished easy enough. This week his problem will be harder requiring a different brand of treatment.

• • •

BUCYRUS TOUGH

OVERCONFIDENCE after a victory has a tendency to make a team take what seems to be a setup none too seriously. As a result games are lost that under the proper circumstances would have been victories.

Harding will find Bucyrus able to furnish plenty opposition. The one-sided victory turned in by the team over Galion last night bears mute witness of the fact. Monnett, according to reports, has scored not less than 10 points in each game he has started.

Harding should beat Bucyrus if the Mansfield victory does not turn team member's heads. The game may be easy but why take any chances? The best plan is to expect a hard fight.

SNYDER IS IN GOOD SHAPE FOR MATCH

Local Boy Holds Interest of Eagles' Fight Show Monday

Constant activity throughout the winter months has pinced Ray Snyder, Marion's most promising recruit in boxing ranks, in top condition, it was learned today from his manager.

Snyder completed training today for his eight-round fight with Joe Bradshaw Newark, in the semi-final of the Eagles' boxing show Monday night in the temple on West Center st. The local lad will step into the ring, tipping the scales around to the 112 pound mark.

In addition to a steady training grind, Snyder has appeared in a number of fights since last seen in action in the local ring. He is expecting a tough battle Monday night.

An eight-round bout will bring together California Joe Gans, who is fighting out of Toledo, and Norb Smith of Newark. These boys are scheduled for the feature bout of the evening although the Snyder-Bradshaw clash is attracting considerable interest from Marion fans.

MARION CAGERS WIN INITIAL N. C. O. FRAY

McAninch High Point Man in 26 to 23 Victory; Airtight Defense Downfall of Murphymen; Local Team Shows Great Improvement

BY KARL R. McELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

TURNING the well thumbed pages of the office edition of Webster it is found that the definitions for out-general include "to excel in generalship; to gain advantage over by superior strategy."

That was just what happened at Mansfield last night when Coach Reidy Compton's five Red and Black basketeers completely outsmarted the Murphymen to the tune of 26 to 23 gaining a toehold on the North Central Ohio high school cage pennant.

It was one of those contests that could easily be called a classic and most of the several hundred rabid Marion fans who witnessed the tray will remember it as one of the most outstanding battles ever put up by the two schools.

Anybody's Game

Anybody's contest until the final gun cracked, the lead in the game changed hands so many times that it kept the scorers in a daze. Neither team was able to hold a commanding lead at any time and it was a fight to the finish until the very last second.

*And so Harding high gained re*venge for the defeat chalked up against the local aggregation by Mansfield to mar an otherwise perfect N. C. O. football record. Harding won the grid title after losing to Mansfield but perhaps the latter team will get the last laugh out of the basketball tangle. At least Marion has gained revenge and how sweet it was.

There will be disputes over which of the two teams was superior. But the main thing Marion is interested in is the fact that Harding chalked up a victory. Superiority may look nice on paper but it does not go far when the so-called "weak" aggregation wins.

No Breaks

Breaks? That is another question that someone would think of bringing up. Opportunity knocks but once and Harding did not hesitate to slip a few long ones through the basket. Mansfield used short within-the-foul-line shots. But who won?

The fact that the Mansfield offense featured short shots and snappy passing under the bucket was just what gave Harding its victory. Harding's defense was drawn in almost to the foul line and worked up in such a fashion that Mansfield was able to get mighty few really good short flips at the loop. In the meantime Mansfield was given all the chances in the world to toss at medium range in the general direction of the circle. Mansfield didn't and Harding stopped the team that beat Canton McKinley.

Compton's quintet put up as fine a defensive and offensive game that one would care to see in high school ball. It was not perfect, however, especially in the first quarter, when Harding was troubled by a slippery floor. Both teams were rather rough at handling the ball in the initial period, but settled down before the half ended.

McAninch Scoring Ace

Captain McAninch led the local scoring machine with a total of 13 points. The word "hot" does not fairly describe his shooting from beyond the foul line. Most of his points were scored at long range. Three counters came via the free throw route.

His running mate, Castner, played the finest game that he has turned in this season. He was a bear at guarding and his tactics on the offense were worthy of more than mat a passing mention. Roush and Walker, the Marion forwards, featured the game with their floor work. Roush counted four points while Walker was collecting two. Although failing to do much as a scoring unit, Gillis was among 'em on the defense. He stopped many a sure basket with his long arms.

Bride, who has captained the Murphymen for the past two years, topped the Mansfield scoring sheet with a total of 10 points. He scored three fielders and four free throws. Sharp, the star of the Canton McKinley game, was held to a lone free throw.

Leads in First Quarter

Mansfield held the lead during the first quarter, doubling the score on Marion. As the opening period ended Harding trailed, 8 to 4. McAninch opened up at long range in the second stanza and as the half ended Harding held a 15 to 11 lead.

Mansfield recovered its scoring prowess between halves and in the third period took the lead, 20 to 18.

The closing period was a hectic session with Mansfield and Harding alternating on the lead. At times it looked as though Harding was doomed to defeat but a few timely points put the locals out in front as the game ended.

The first three minutes of the first quarter looked bad for Harding. McMullen scored the first bucket on a short shot and Castner tied it up at two all with a neat basket. Bride drew his first blood and McAninch was caught charging with Sharp making the foul. Bride shot from the foul circle and scored. Castner was charging and Bride counted one point. Two fouls were called on Bride with Gillis and McAninch each scoring points.

Score Soon Tied

McAninch opened the second period by knotting the score with a long and a short shot. Mac caged two more and Channel was sent in for King. McAninch's personal gave Mansfield its first two points of period with Bride shooting. Channel's personal was turned into a counter by McAninch. McMullen contributed another point on Roush's foul. The black-headed forward then ended the period with a bucket for Harding.

Sharp inaugurated the second half by missing a free throw donated by Walker. Channel looped one and Shuster missed a pair of free throws. Channel then tied the score at 15 all. McAninch broke the tie with a free throw. A nice follow shot by Gillis contributed two more points. Bride looped a long one and Shuster sent Mansfield into the lead with a shot under the loop on an out of bounds play. A personal was called on Gillis which was turned into a point by Bride.

McAninch Again

The score was tied as the final quarter opened when McAninch shot from the foul line. A series of substitutions were followed by another bucket from McAninch. Roush increased the score to 24 and McMullen brought Mansfield within hailing distance with a two-pointer. Walker aided the Harding cause with a deuce. McAninch passed up Bride's personal and Channel split even on Castner's foul as the game ended. The lineups:

CENTRAL FRESHMEN BEAT PREPS, 32-20

Pickerel and Morgan High Men in Annual Cage Tilt

Lead by Pickerel and Morgan, the Central Freshmen "took" their old rivals, the Vocational Preps, to the tune of a 32 20 score in their annual battle played at the Y. M. C. A. last night.

The game was featured by close guarding on the part of both teams, Adams and Errett of the Vocationals going out via the four-foul route. The Preps lead at the end of the first period, 5 to 3, but saw themselves on the short end of a 13-8 score at the half. The Vocationals lost more ground in the third quarter, scoring only one point while the Freshies ran up five. The last period saw the losers play their best scoring game, making 11 points. The victors scored 14 to run their score up to 32.

Lamb was high man of the game, scoring 11 points while Pickerel was high for the winners sinking three buckets and three fouls for nine points.

The score:

Central	G.	F.	Preps	G.	F.
Pickerel, f	3	3	Lamb, f	5	1
Morgan, f	2	3	Adams, f	2	1

Bucyrus Swamps Galion In Non-League Tilt

M'Aninch Leads Scorers

HARDING HIGH GUARD MAKES 15 POINTS IN OPENING CAGE GAME

Mackey, Galion, In Second Place with 11; Bride Is Third

DICK McANINCH, Harding high school football and basketball star, is heading the North Central Ohio basketball scorers, records of the opening league games showed today.

Only four of the six league teams have seen action this season. Mansfield, Harding, Galion and Shelby have played, leaving Ashland and Bucyrus players out of the select circle of high scorers.

The local player scored 15 points in the one game played this season against Mansfield. Mackey, Galion guard, has scored 11 points to hold second place with Bride of Mansfield in next position with 10 points.

Scorers in the league follow:

UNDEFEATED TEAMS FACE HARD BATTLES

Week of Big Ten Games Finds Seven Fives Beaten

CHICAGO, Jan. 12—The western conference basketball season is only a week old, yet all except three of the Big Ten teams have already tasted the gall of defeat. Which proves nothing more nor less than the present campaign should be a merry free-for-all.

That the number of unbeaten fives will be reduced still further tonight is assured by the fact that Michigan and Iowa, both with unsullied records, play against each other at Iowa City. There is a remote possibility that the field may be cut to one in view of the Purdue-Northwestern game at Lafayette tonight. Purdue is the other undefeated quintet.

Northwestern, ruled in pre-season "dope" as one of the strongest Big Ten contenders, has been beaten in its first two starts. On the theory, however, that "upsets" in basketball are as common as "naturals," no one would become pop-eyed from shock in the event the wildcats polled a winner on Purdue.

While the Iowa City and Lafayette game will be the headliners on tonight's card, three other contests, bringing into action the other six Big Ten contenders, will be followed with more than passing interest. Illinois plays Ohio State at Columbus, Wisconsin comes here to battle Chicago and Indiana takes on Minnesota at Minneapolis.

Any one of the last named teams is still a potential title winner, despite the fact that each has taken it "on the chin" once or twice. All of them, including Northwestern, can be counted on to make the going tough right up to the final gong.

OTTERBEIN SWAMPED

TIFFIN, Jan 12 — The Student Princes of Heidelberg literally swamped an almost defenseless team from Otterbein here last night by a 60 to 27 score. The local quint took the lead at the start and held it throughout the game. The score at the end of the half was 32 to 11. Hess, Akron, brilliant Heidelberg forward, starred with a total of 26 points.

TOLEDO U. WINS

TOLEDO, Jan. 12—Toledo university opened its Northwestern conference basketball race here last night with a 31 to 20 win over Bluffton college. The game was fast and rough throughout. The Rockets took an early lead and never were threatened, having a 13 to 6 advantage at the end of the first period. Bill Walker, Toledo guard, was the high scorer for the game with 13 points.

BY BOB ELLIOTT
Marion Star Sports Staff

GREEN CAMP'S cagers marked up their third straight win of the season in the west section of the Marion county basketball league downing their ancient rivals, Prospect, 24 to 6.

Lead by Porter, the Green Camp quintet jumped in to an early lead and were never headed. The Prospect team scored a foul in the first quarter and went scoreless in the next two periods. Two field goals and a foul were scored in the final frame to complete its scoring activities. Porter, the Big Green pivot man, was at his best sinking buckets from all over the floor to score 16 points.

In the other boys' game of the West section, Morral swamped LaRue under a 47 to 15 score, with Hellar doing the heavy work. Agosta was off duty in last night's schedule.

In the East section, Kirkpatrick boys downed Pleasant in an 18 to 16 thriller. Rowe lead the victors with seven points. Waldo kept its slate clean by plastering a 16-10 setback on the Caledonia five. Strine and Gerson were hot for the winners, each scoring six points.

Out Martel way the boys were making whoopee and a check up on the score showed that Claridon held the small end of a 93 to 20 count. The one sided victory, featuring the shooting of Hershner and C. Burkhart, gives Martel four wins and no defeats.

Morral girls' team kept at the head of the procession in the West section by walloping LaRue 32 to 11. The game was won mainly through the high scoring activities of a right forward by the name of Heller, who was able to find the hoop for 12 field goals and a foul. Prospect and Green Camp played to a 15-15 deadlock at Green Camp. A freak play in the last minute of play won a tie for the Green Camp "femmes."

Pleasant girls gave the dope bucket a big wallop as they handed the Kirkpatrick team its first setback of the season in their clash at Kirkpatrick. The game ended 12 to 11 with Cooper, Pleasant forward, scoring six points. Lemke, Kirkpatrick forward, did her best to win for her alma mater with nine points, but received little help from her team mates.

VICTORS READY FOR GAME WITH HARDING NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT

Scoring Spree Gives Crawford County 49 to 24 Verdict

BUCYRUS, Jan. 12—Bucyrus high school basketeers staged a field meet here last night with the Galion quintet and emerged on the long end of a 49 to 24 count. Bucyrus jumped into the lead at the first whistle and was never in danger of being headed. Taylor was high point man for the winners with five field baskets and three from the black line.

The contest was not a North Central Ohio league fracas, Galion still remains tied with Harding for the first place in the league standings. The two schools will meet in a league game at Galion on Feb. 22.

The local quintet is looking forward to a victory in its first league start here next Friday night. Harding high school of Marion will face Coach Winters' five. The Harding and Mansfield contests are expected to be outstanding on the Bucyrus schedule.

While their big brothers were winning the girls upheld the feminine honors of the evening by defeating the Kenton sextet, 33 to 19. W. Benz was high scorer with a total of 14 counters.

Lineups and summaries:

AT MINNEAPOLIS: Del Fontaine, of Winnipeg, Man., stopped Dick Daniels, Minneapolis middleweight (1).

GREEN CAMP BANQUETS PROSPECT HIGH QUINTET

Forgetting the rivalry that has made the athletic encounters of the two schools one of the outstanding sport events of the county, Green Camp high school last night was host to the Prospect cagers at a banquet.

The feed followed a basketball game in which Prospect was defeated by a one-sided score.

A rubber suit that keeps a wearer afloat and permits him to walk about in water has been invented in Germany, chiefly for the use of firemen.

Industrial Stocks Skid To New Low Price Level

WEATHER BLAMED FOR FALL IN TRADE

Pullman and Stewart Warner Show Ability To Withstand Attack

EXPERTS REVEAL FACTS

Steel Corporation Figured To Earn $20 Per Share This Year

W. S. COUSINS
I. N. S. Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—Industrial stocks started off to a lower level of prices at the beginning of the short session of the market today. There were only a notable exceptions to the rule, Pullman and Stewart Warner showing their ability to branch out for themselves. Studebaker and U. S. Steel, yesterday's outstanding favorites were heavily sold around the level of Friday's closing prices.

The sharp pencil experts brought out some startling estimates or guesses about the Steel corporation's ability to earn money. It all comes under the head of "interesting if true" since it was attempted to show that the Steel corporation will earn $20 a share this year (with tax refund) and not less $9.57 a share this year. A new split-up of the stock, with a juicy stock melon, is also predicted for this year.

Chile took a lead away from Anaconda in the copper stock group. A block of 7,000 shares sold at 75, the highest price in three years, after which the stock sold up to 76½ in a smart turnover. Chile has not stepped in line with the copper stocks in the last year or two. Anaconda was well bought around 110 and Green Cananea at 174.

The week-end business reviews blamed the bad weather for a falling off in trade in some of the important sections of the country—which was as good an excuse as any. The merchants do not complain, having feared their docks for a big season. Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth and other of the "store" stocks sold off a few points.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Prices in Marion's market places closed the week quietly, no changes being reported for today by retail produce dealers.

All week long the prices on groceries, meats and fruits have remained about on the same level, only a few changes being made in the meat departments of the stores.

A raise of two cents in the price of cabbage and a drop in the price of lemons were the only changes of any note this week.

FEW PRICE CHANGES LISTED THIS WEEK

Drop in Quotation on Lemons Only Unusual Development in Market Here

Provisions at Marion's market places finished a quiet week today, prices remaining stationary with a few exceptions and changes not being of a radical nature.

Eggs and butter, the two commodities that are expected to change more than anything else, have been at a standstill for nearly three weeks.

A few weeks ago while the flu was raging, the price of lemons shot to 60 cents a dozen. This week the fall started and today the fruit was quoted at 30 cents.

The price of meats also changed a bit this week. None, however, advanced or fell more than a few cents. The price of cabbage also went up Friday from five to seven cents per pound.

Reliable Security Distributors Wanted

A financial organization specializing in underwriting 6% First Mortgage Real Estate Bonds guaranteed by two surety companies of national reputation, wishes to make connections with reliable security dealers who will concentrate their efforts on the sale of this type of investment security in MARION, and adjacent territory. We will consider dealers handling large or small quantities of these bonds, but will consider only those who can furnish unquestionable references and a record of actual production.

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 12—A reaction in wheat caused an easier tone in all the grains yesterday and prices averaged moderately lower through the balance of the trading period.

Weakness of the foreign wheat markets brought local and commission house selling of wheat and there was considerable realizing following a week of advancing prices. Buying by Eastern interests, shorts and Northwest houses checked the decline, and the market the remainder of the day was featured by its extreme nervousness.

Profit taking and the easiness in wheat led to lower prices for corn in the early trade, but Eastern interests and shorts bought and there was a large volume of resting orders around 95c for the May. The reaction did not extend as far as many had expected and in the final hour of trade an oversold condition was apparent. Short covering ensued, and the market rallied to the previous close.

Not Unexpected

The reaction in wheat was not unexpected. Prices have been advancing steadily all week in all of the principal markets of the world. The advance was the natural consequence of heavily oversold markets. Upturning prices resulted when shorts covered following the drying up of Argentine and Canadian wheat offerings abroad at the low price levels.

Locals bearishly inclined were restrained by the support the market was receiving and the apparent ease with which it rallied on any increase in buying. On the other hand, following the advance, bulls were not inclined to press their side as the market was considerably weaker technically. Thursday's trade having caused a decline in the open interest of nearly 4,000,000 bu.

Export Trade Quiet

Aside from some further reports of damage to Winter wheat, which led to some buying, the normal market news was little changed. Export trade was quiet, and Broomhall reported that the foreign demand had been checked by the sudden upturn. However, he pointed out, importers have not bought ahead and are therefore dependent upon Canada for nearby supplies.

Active participation of all interests on both sides of the corn market resulted in a large volume of business transacted in a range of prices which was very narrow considering the broad interest. As in wheat, a reaction had been anticipated but prices ruled firmer than expected.

There were two developments looked upon as extremely bullish factors. First, the open interest in corn, in direct contrast with wheat, gained more than 2,000,000 bushels despite the heavy volume of short covering Thursday, indicating a widening interest in the bull side. And Bradstreet's compilation of corn clearances showed shipments of over 3,100,000 bushels.

The French budget for this year has increased the amount appropriated for public instruction by 506,000,000 francs and for agricultural electrification by 20,000,000 francs.

CITY BRIEFS

Attend Funeral—Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Mochel, South Grand av., Edwin Mochel, Lincoln av. and Mrs. George Beckel, South Grand av., have returned from Dayton, where they attended the funeral of their aunt, Mrs. Jacob King, who died Sunday night at her home after an illness of 15 years. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mrs. King had a large number of relatives and friends in this city.

Will Open Branch—The Klean Kut market, East Center st., will open its first out-of-town branch at Delaware about the latter part of this month, according to an announcement made today by company officials. Work has been started on remodelling a room in Delaware. A new front will be constructed and the interior re-decorated.

Ranks Fifth—C. E. Baird, of the Marion agency of the Ohio State Life Insurance Co., ranked fifth among all the representatives of the company in the amount of insurance written in December, according to an announcement made in Columbus today by John M. Sarver, president of the company.

Funeral Held Today—Funeral services for Leon M. Nutt were held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at Peach Blow church, south of Delaware. The Rev. Eugene Rush was in barge and burial was made in Cheshire cemetery. Mr. Nutt died Wednesday afternoon at his home, 1225 East Center st., following a year's illness of cancer. He was supervisor of the Marion territory for the Kroger Grocery Co.

Rites Sunday—Funeral services for Alonzo A. Noyes, 80, who passed away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Blanche Bales, 928 Clinton st., Thursday morning, will be held Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the W. C. Boyd funeral home. Burial will be in Millford Center cemetery. Death was due to a week's illness of bronchial pneumonia.

Attend Funeral—Mr. and Mrs. Edgar B. Williams, of Kansas City, Mo., returned home today after attending the funeral of Mr. Williams' brother, Herbert Williams, who died of heart trouble Tuesday at Vicksburg, Miss. Herbert Williams was buried in the Marion cemetery yesterday. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Williams, formerly of Marion.

Pastor Gives Talk—Rev. J. W. Schillinger, pastor of Emanuel's Lutheran church, was the chief speaker at the Olney Avenue Community club, Friday afternoon at the school building. Following a social hour, refreshments were served.

GERMAN SOCIALISTS FAVOR PEACE ARMY

Say Defense Force Must Be Kept Within Limits of Treaty

BERLIN, Jan. 12—Abandoning its traditional opposition against all armament, the German Socialist party has come out for an "army of peace" to protect the German republic against the ambitions of "imperialistic and fascist" governments.

This new policy is expressed in a resolution adopted by a commission of the most prominent Socialist leaders of Germany. This resolution will be submitted to the next national convention of the Socialist party, which is the biggest party in Germany, and which furnished most of the members of the president's cabinet, including Chancellor Mueller.

At the same time, the Socialist party repudiates war, demands disarmament and compulsory arbitration of all international quarrels, and threatens revolution against any government which rejects arbitration and resorts to war.

The Socialist party demands, however, that the German defense force must be kept within the limits of the disarmament provisions of the treaty of Versailles, and condemns any attempt to "exceed or evade them," because such attempts merely furnish "other countries with grounds or excuses to reject international disarmament agreements or even to increase their armaments."

CONFESSION CLEARS MURDER MYSTERY

Two Men Held for Slaying of Chain Store Butcher in Ft. Wayne

DAYTON, Jan. 12—The mystery surrounding the murder of Clem Foley, chain store butcher in Fort Wayne, Ind., last Monday night, was cleared up at Greenville, O., today, by the signed confession of Theodore Lewis and Carroll Cooper.

They were arrested at Georgetown, Ky., yesterday and were taken to Greenville for the theft of an automobile. They were to be returned today to Fort Wayne, where they are wanted for the robbing of a chain store of $400.

Carroll and Cooper, in their confession, stated that Foley was killed when he resisted them. The confession also implicates Lawrence Thompson, who escaped at Georgetown, but was later arrested at Muncie, Ind., the home of the three men.

They were originally sought for the theft of bed clothing from a Georgetown hotel. Two women, Goldie Thompson, wife of Lawrence, and Lola Myers, were arrested with the men and taken to Greenville.

COOPER'S CABINET POSTS ALL FILLED

Naming of Dr. Neal as Health Director Completes List

COLUMBUS, Jan. 12—With the selection of Dr. Charles A. Neal, 44, Cincinnati, Republican, as state health director, Governor-elect Myers Y. Cooper today had completed his cabinet appointees who will take office shortly after Cooper is inaugurated as Governor here Monday.

Dr. Neal, in accepting the health directorship, will resign as Hamilton county health commissioner. He is a colonel in the U. S. medical reserve corps. He saw service at the Mexican border and overseas during the World war as sanitary inspector of the 37th division.

He announced his intention of retaining Dr. James E. Bauman, Columbus, Republican, as assistant director. Bauman has occupied this position for many years.

CASCADE TUNNEL TO BE OPENED IN WEST

Nation-Wide Radio Hookup Will Broadcast Dedication Event

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 12—The American crown for lengthy tunnels will be lifted today from the Moffat tunnel in the Colorado Rockies and placed on the pinnacles of the Washington Cascades when the Great Northern Cascade tunnel, eight miles in length, is formally dedicated and opened to traffic late this afternoon.

The event marks another triumph of American engineering and railroad construction over the mountain barrier to western markets. It is the culmination of three years work and expenditure of $25,000,000.

Prominent state and railroad officials, including Gov. Roland Hartley of Washington; Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern railroad; engineers and others connected with the tunnel construction will meet at the eastern portal for the opening ceremonies. The party will then board a special train for the initial ride through the sleek concrete-walled bore to the western portal where the dedication services will be completed.

A radio program picked up from scattered points throughout the United States and synchronized with the passage of the first train through the tunnel will be broadcast over a national network between 6 p. m. and 7 p. m. President-elect Herbert Hoover will participate in the program.

PROGRAM GIVEN

Davids St. Community Club Meets; Bake Sale Planned

Mrs. Ernest Weaver, president, was in charge of the meeting of the Davids Street Community club yesterday afternoon at the Davids street school building.

The meeting opened with a song, "America, the Beautiful." Scripture reading was in charge of Mrs. Carrie Durr. Contest for the banner room, a title given to the room which has the most mothers present, was a tie between Miss Bertha Orinus' room and that of Mrs. Durr.

Plans were made for a bake sale to be held Jan. 19 in Uhler-Phillips Co. basement.

Hostesses of the meeting were Mrs. William Osterholt, Mrs. Ralph Moore, Mrs. C. C. Parthemore, Mrs. W. G. Berry and Mrs. Frank Hall.

The next meeting will be Feb 1.

REPORT HOOVER IS FOR COURT PROJECT

Favors New Effort To Align with World Tribunal, Is Indicated

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—President-elect Hoover has passed the word to authoritative diplomatic circles that he is favorably disposed toward a new effort to bring about American adherence to the world court.

This was the assurance carried back to New York today by Elihu Root, former secretary of state, following his breakfast conference yesterday with Hoover.

Root has been invited by the council of the league of nations to participate in the work of revising the original world court protocol of 1920, together with all subsequent international law promulgated by the court's decisions.

His conference with Hoover, it was learned, was devoted principally to a discussion of Hoover's wishes as to American policy, should such revision of the court's basic laws open the way for American participation on the terms already approved by the senate amendments.

Nature, itself, is as astounding as any theology.
